My Dear General:

Enclosed I send "Circular" of a book I have had published at my own expense. May I ask that you will call it to the attention of such of your friends as you think likely to take an interest in the subjects discussed and who can probably spare $2.00 for the purchase of the work.

Your attention to this matter will confer a favor upon

Very truly Your friend

CONFEDERATE WAR PAPERS.

By GENERAL GUSTAVUS W. SMITH.

Atlantic Publishing and Engraving Company. New York, 1884.

SECOND EDITION.

THE first Paper gives an account of the proceedings of a Conference at Fairfax Court House in October, 1861; Conference at Richmond in April, 1862; Synopsis of operations near Yorktown, and the withdrawal of the army to the vicinity of Richmond. The second Paper relates to the defences of Louisiana and the evacuation of New Orleans. The third consists of "Notes" on the battle of Seven Pines (Fair Oaks). The fourth refers to the defences of Richmond and of North Carolina; includes the official correspondence relating to General G. W. Smith's resignation, and some additional incidents illustrating official acts of President Davis. These four Papers constitute the text proper of the book.

An Appendix is added, giving letters addressed to General G. W. Smith in reference to his resignation, a short sketch of his life, and a chapter of severe accusations made against him, which are refuted by a plain statement of facts.

The work contains a map of the vicinity of Richmond, two maps of the battlefield of Seven Pines, and a steel-plate portrait of the author.

The whole forming a well-bound duodecimo volume of nearly 400 pages. Address,

GUSTAVUS W. SMITH, 10 Perry Street, New York City,

OR,

ATLANTIC PUBLISHING AND ENGRAVING CO., 2 MURRAY STREET, NEW YORK CITY.

EXTRACTS FROM PRESS NOTICES.

Courier-Journal, Louisville, Ky., Jan. 15th, 1884.

"This work is in some respects a reply to the war history of ex-President Davis, but it may claim superiority over the most of books, filled with assertions, in that the points taken are proven by documentary evidence. . . . The movements of General Johnston's army are given in the terse English which is characteristic of General G. W. Smith. . . . Part second of the book is as intensely interesting as a novel, and should be studied by all who admire vivid and almost dramatic portrayal of facts. . . . The letter of Mr. Davis, endorsed upon the resignation of General Smith, and General G. W. Smith's reply, are among the most spicy and pungent papers of the great unpleasantness."

Observer, Louisville, Ky., Jan. 31st, 1884.

"General G. W. Smith is a native of Kentucky, graduated at West Point, and served with distinction in the Mexican war. . . . His book gives us an inside view of matters between our military men . . . and will be read with interest by his old friends and all who are concerned in refreshing their memory of those stirring and bloody times."

Gaillard's Medical Journal, New York City, Feb. 1884.

"The book is one of great value. . . . Most of this work is made up of indisputable facts never before given to the public. . . . The book is well issued."

Telegram, New London, Conn., March 1st, 1884.

"General G. W. Smith's 'Notes' on the battle of Seven Pines have thrown a flood of light upon the incidents of that battle, and cleared up many of the conflicting details of its progress that heretofore have passed for authentic history."

The Bee, New Orleans, March 30th, 1884.

During the secession war General G. W. Smith believed it his duty to resign his commission as major-general in the Confederate States army. He then at once offered his services to General Beauregard, who had charge of the defences of Charleston. The offer was accepted, and the valiant volunteer did not leave Charleston until the Federal fleet had been repulsed and the iron-clad steamer Keokuk had been sunk. During all the rest of the war General Smith devoted his military, engineering, and strategical abilities to the Confederate cause. In command of the State forces of Georgia he fully justified the unbounded confidence placed in him by the Governor of that State. The book is filled with important details and military discussions which will be read with great interest by those who care to understand the principal events of that four years' struggle.

The City Item, New Orleans, March 31st, 1884.

"The weight of General Smith's book is in a sense of adverse criticism of ex-President Davis's connection with the military operations therein described. . . . The work is written in a clear and attractive style."

The Commercial Advertiser, New York, April 8th, 1884.

"General Smith's work will be valued precisely in its capacity to throw light upon facts, to correct misconceptions, and to explain matters imperfectly understood. . . . His relation to certain events was close, and his knowledge of them is direct and complete. . . . We find a good deal in this work which is worthy of attention."

PRICE, $2.00 PER COPY.

Upon receipt of price the book will be sent by mail, postage paid, to any address.

Dear General:

It has almost become to be a fact that I never write to you unless I want something. So as this will be no exception to the rule, I feel that you will not be offended. Yes, General, I want something, and you are the only one to whom I can apply with a certainty of getting it.

A recent change in the Binder of the Govt. Printing Office has placed an old friend ^{of mine} at the head of that division - a Mr. McWhite, formerly assistant foreman. I spoke to him yesterday in reference to getting our daughter Suie (now 15 years of age, & tall & handsome as her mother) work in the office under him. He told me all I needed was a letter from Senator Hawley (now a member of the Committee on Printing) to secure work for her. Now, General, please write a good,

inches

1 | 2 | 3 | 4 | 5 | 6 | 7 | 8

strong letter to your friend, Mr. Hawley, in Jessie's behalf. You can say nothing too good concerning her for she is one of the best girls in the world.

You will remember, General, that when I left Portland you gave me a letter to Gen. Hawley. On the strength of that letter Mrs. Cudlip secured from him a splendid recommendation to the Comr. of Agriculture. But owing to lack of funds for that Bureau, at the time, Mrs. C. failed to get employment.

I should like you to send the letter to me; and Mrs. C. and Jessie will call on the Senator with it. The Post Office is working to its full capacity, and there will not be a doubt of her getting temporary employment at once.

I hope this will find you all in health & happiness. We are getting on nicely, and all join in love to you.
Remember us kindly to Capt. Sladen & family.
