you all, that John is back, and Harry and Guy's wife gone. You will be pretty quiet when John goes back, as I suppose he will pretty soon now.

Grace and the Captain I saw on last Wednesday night. They were over here to party at the Post Hall, given to the visiting officers. I had the ill-luck to be on guard on Sunday, so I did not see them as usual. They are all well. Mrs. Thompson has gone back to Portland, with her sick mother, and she does look sick indeed.

Tell Bessie that I borrowed two of her books, paper covered, to read on the cars, and I meant to ask her for them, but in the confusion of coming away I forgot to do so, but I sent them back, addressed to you, by mail, and I have no doubt you received them before this.

I can't tell you how much I enjoyed my visit to you, every minute of it. I never had a pleasanter time, and the memory of it still lingers pleasantly in my mind. I thank you all for it.

Mrs. S. and Carrie join me in love to you all. The lavender was thoroughly appreciated by Mrs. Sladen.

My dear General;

The letters, to Mr. Thompson and to Mr. Failing, you so kindly wrote for me, came a few days after I got home. I sent them both a few days ago, and received the most gratifying replies from both these gentlemen. My commission came about a week after I came back, but as I was on sick report, on account of an abrasion of my lame leg, I took no action about retirement until last Monday, when I had an interview with Col. Anderson about delaying my application for retirement for a short time, but he showed me very plainly that he did not wish this done, and as I was not going to be placed in the position of a suppliant to him, I went home and at once wrote and sent in my application. The next day he sent to know if I was going to attend drills and dress parades, and when I replied that I could not, he sent his Adjutant to tell me that he would like to have me put in a Surgeon's certificate to that effect, and I did so. Now I learn that he has sent forward that certificate as a part of my application. I tell you of this, General, because, in the uncertainty of military matters, then, on account of the prospective change involving yourself, I wanted to hold on a while longer. But you see Col. Anderson wants a change in Company commanders. It is not that he dislikes me more, but because he is one of the restless kind who is constantly wanting some change. I could not sac-my self respect by asking him any favor. However, I am not particularly sorry. It is always a sort of a satisfaction to be forced into any great change involving any degree of uncertainty.

It rather relieves one of any responsibility.

Both Mr. Failing and Mr. Thompson promise that they will look out for something congenial for me to do, and Mr. Thompson especially thinks that he will soon have something that will be attractive.

He wants me to go over to see him, and told one of my friends, the other day, that he thinks he has something for me. He is a driving business man, and one of the business leaders, as well as one of the richest men, in Portland. He has way too of his own for picking out his men for responsible positions. He is the President of one Bank, a principle stockholder in another, and director in a half a dozen Insurance and other financial institutions. So, you see, he has opportunities enough arising from time to time, to place a man, if he wants to. Mr. Failing told me that if he had known of my wishes a few weeks ago, he would have made me Secretary of the Water Board, of which he is President, and which pays a salary of $1800 a year. He says it would have just suited me. He says, however, that he has been called upon to pick out a man for some place at a minutes notice frequently, and he will be on the lookout.

In the meantime, I have not done anything to mature my ^scheme for Safe Deposit company yet, for I want more time for that in Portland.

But I will advise with Mr. Thompson about it when I can get over to Portland. I am kept pretty close here now on account of the detachment of nearly all our officers on this Division Target contest. As soon as this is over I shall go over to Portland and see Mr. Thompson. If the right thing turns up before action is had on my case, I will ask for leave, so that I can go right to work.

Now I have talked a good deal about myself, but it seemed necessary to do so, to make you understand my position.

Gen. Schofield has done just what I prophesied he would do, viz. take command of the army and at the same time retain the command of the Division of the East. In this way he will make ^{it} constantly apparent that another a Major General is necessary, in order to keep up the uniformity of the present divisions and departments, and the integrity of the present organization, and to do this it will be necessary to revive to grade of Lieut. General. Well, if this thing can be brought about it will be a good thing for you, but if it is done for Schofield, it should be done as a permanency and for all time, and if the attempt is made I hope you will throw your influence for it, for I expect to see you in command of the army yet, and the past three years has brought forth ^{more} astonishing changes that were not foreseen.

Is it true that Mrs. Schofield has gone back into the Protestant church? I have been told so. I trust it may be true. It would be refreshing to know that the Army is again commanded by Potestant influence. And even a negative Prtestant is preferable to a positive Catholic.

Major Darling is here, and so is Col. DeRussy. They bring me news of you all.

Crime and pauperism have fallen off in the state of Maine, under the Prohibition law, over one hundred per cent, and the value of real estate has advanced in the same ratio, according to the statistics, while no politician in the state would dare to hint at the repeal of the law.

It is said by those who have given careful study to the matter that there are in Paterson over ten thousand persons, mostly youth, who never go inside a church at all. If this is so what a field is here presented for recruits for Temperance and Religion or vice and folly.

INTEMPERANCE and LABOR.

The organization of labor has hitherto been in the hands of unfit men, with too few exceptions. The leaders have been selfish, narrow minded, or ignorant. The true way to utilize the strength of united labor is to develop the individual power of the members. By no other means have great nations ever been formed. An association the effective strength of which depends upon the surrender of the rights and liberties of its members may be a dangerous instrument for the use of adventurers and demagogues, but it cannot advance the interests of the men themselves. The most urgent want of labor today is self control. In this free country no man endowed with average abilities need remain all his life poor. If he has thrift, self-restraint, perseverance, he will pass from the ranks of labor to the ranks of capital. It is the saving man who becomes the capitalist,—the man who has force to deny himself indulgences. What a lesson lies in the drink bill of the American workingmen, for instance! At a moderate estimate, it amounts to between four and five hundred million dollars a year. While labor is throwing away that enormous sum annually, with what show of consistency can it lament its condition? One year's remission of that destructive self indulgence would solve every labor problem extant; would provide a fund for the establishment of co-operative works, for the sustenance of the sick and aged, for the maintenance and education of orphans, for libraries and scientific schools, for all manner of helps. At present the workingman can hardly make both ends meet. Is it not because he insists on creating capitalists out of the saloon keepers, and not content with that, on substituting all his rights of citizenship to the same objects of worship? The saloon in politics is the most hideous abuse of the day, but where would it be if the workingmen withdrew their support from it? It keeps them poor. It keeps our politics corrupt. It supplies a constant stream of base adventurers, who disgrace the American name at home and abroad. It makes the "public office" and "public plunder" synonymous. It stifles progress, fosters pauperism, brutalizes hands and fathers, breaks women's hearts, puts rage on the workingman's back, disease in his body, and shame and despair in his heart. Yet when labor is most disturbed, when the demand for advanced wages is loudest, when strikes are most frequent, when hunger and misery are most rife in the homes of the poor, the saloon flourishes still. There may be no bread at home, but there is always beer and whiskey at the bar, and the men who consider themselves the victims of circumstances or the "thralls" of capital, squander their earnings, spend their savings in der their earnings, spend their savings in der these dens. Can there be a serious labor question while this state of things continues? Can workingmen talk gravely of their wrongs while it is plain to all the world that if they

After our thirty years of trying to work out the great problem, people point to a few of the large cities and say, "Look at Maine." It is easily seen why the putting out of the way of such obstacles to the cause as this is of the utmost importance. Most of the saloon keepers, except those of Bangor, dispose of their rum on the sly."

LEAFLETS.

Prohibition never was so strong and its advocates never so hopeful and determined as to-day, in all its history.

We expect this little Messenger to be read by ten thousand persons, and hope that many if not all of them will put it in an envelope and send it to a friend.

If you think this leaflet will help in the work of banishing the Rum fiend out of this country send a few stamps and the names of men that we can send it to, or we will send it to your own address.

The city of Paterson has between sixty and seventy thousand population with one church to every seven hundred souls or thereabout, and a saloon to every hundred, or more than seven saloons to every church by actual count.

We put forth this little leaflet in the firm belief that Almighty Providence is on the side of the gospel temperance work and that all that is done in the spirit and faith of Jesus will be sustained and meet success if needed in the work.

in the Union he spoke the truth. The dilapidated buildings are being repaired or replaced by new ones, handsome in architecture and substantial in structure, and the almost hopeless poverty is giving way to vigorous industry, intelligence and wealth. By careful estimates this State now saves directly and indirectly the sum of 24,000,000 yearly. In face of these facts it is a great wrong for Dr. Crosby to say that the Maine law is a failure. All other public issues shrink into insignificance when compared with this question, and the cause cannot hardly have a more dangerous barrier in its way than statements like this of Dr. Crosby's. They are dangerous because we have struggled for more than a quarter of a century before the eyes of the nation, and if successful our example will be followed by every State in the Union. Such men should be informed, so that they will never repeat such statements as that of the clergyman I refer to. The fact that the larger proportion of intemperance has been banished; the fact that of the seventy open grog shops that flourished in the city of Portland and twenty-five acres of land at the Portland wharves after the unloading of cargoes are abolished—do not all these facts signify a progress in one direction or the other? Were not three-fourths of the jails empty six months after the law was passed? But people say they do not understand why the grog shops in the larger cities are allowed to exist. That is the key of the situation.

What Has Prohibition Done?

Not long since a man asked me this question in a scornful, sneering tone.

For answer: In the State of Maine prohibition has closed the dram shops in every part of the State, except a few in Augusta, Bangor and Portland, and in all parts of the state the saloon is now an odious thing, a thing of disrepute; and the tramp and the drunkard must seek their potation in cellars and the woods, if at all. The jails and poor houses of Maine are almost empty; the farms are well kept and fruitful; the Sunday schools and Churches full and the young men and women are virtuous and pious and don't know the smell or taste of strong drink. In Iowa and Kansas the same happy state of things is found, while in the states of Michigan, Texas and Rhode Island, thanks to the Gospel of Christ and the industry of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, the prohibition vote is up in the tens of thousands and all the time gaining in power and numbers. In Georgia the workingmen and negroes vote for prohibition by the tens of thousands and in the mighty Keystone State, Pennsylvania, prohibition in the form of a stringent high license law, is now reducing the number of the licensed dram shops to less than one half of the number of one year ago. The Empire State New York is in the throes of a great Temperance revolution, and the towns on the Hudson River are flocking to the prohibition banner. New Jersey, our own dear New Jersey, is in the very fore front of the battle with her high license law, the stepping stone to prohibition pure and simple.

What has prohibition done? Of good a vast amount, of evil none at all!

It is safe to say that a million men, women and children in America thank God to-day and take new courage in the hope of universal prohibition of the traffic in Rum in the United States.

We see men and women yesterday dirty, ragged and besotted, to-day sober and clean, with the demons cast out, clothed and in their right mind. Personal prohibition did that in the power of Jesus Christ. The principle of total abstinence (prohibition) has redeemed the fallen by the score, the hundred, the thousand; of both sexes, the old and the young. Did Rum ever do it?

Never! never! never!

I saw a woman that was born and reared pure, noble and beautiful, transformed from a happy wife to a monster of sin and depravity by strong drink. Prohibition did not do that!

I stood by the death bed of a man once a kind and tender husband, a good citizen, once a Christian. I heard him cry out in agony of soul: "Oh hope!—there is no hope for me, and to die is hell. Don't say hope to me. I'm in hell now. Yes, in hell now, and Rum did it. Oh Rum, Rum, Rum, Friends of torment! Cursed Rum, rum, rum! I loved rum better than I loved my soul. Oh! rum, rum, rum! to die for ever for rum!"

Prohibition never caused a man to die like that and never will.

THE RECHABITE.

To the LADIES of the W. C. T. U.

When we issued the little Leaflet in January last known as The Rechabite, we had no thought or wish to make money out of it, our sole object being to help in the great work of Temperance and reform; and though we did fix a price to it we gave it away mostly to workingmen.

Several ladies in Poughkeepsie and young men in Brooklyn, as well as others in various places, after reading it, kindly volunteered help to continue its publication.

The number issued first had only eight pages, but an article in it, from the Atlantic Monthly, on "Intemperance and Labor," has been read by thousands of workingmen with profit and thought. And now if we can get the cost of two or three thousand more, we desire to issue another number of The Rechabite with sixteen pages instead of eight, giving the article on "Intemperance and Labor" again, with two pieces of exquisite selected poetry and other matter of intense interest to young and old.

We intend if possible to keep on and make The Rechabite a monthly Leaflet just the right size to put into a number six envelope and send to your friends, full of the choicest extracts of Temperance truth; and to every one who will aid us by the smallest amount either by letter or otherwise we will send the exact number of Rechabites that the money is worth on its issue. A lady of taste and culture will assist in writing and selecting matter for the work, and we intend at once to copyright the title page and try to make the little Rechabite worthy of a place in the Temperance literature of the time.

Please help us to do it.

If those kind friends who have already done so will use a little influence in this direction we can put this leaflet in the hands of twice as many in the next issue as we did in the last and we will use all diligence within our ability to do that or more if possible, aiming chiefly to give it to men who are addicted to the use of strong drink and who toil hard for their livelihood in the humble and lowly walks of life.

We expect to send out the next number of The Rechabite early in September and in view of the mischief and ruin that Rum is doing we appeal to you who read this to help us to put this leaflet in the hands of workingmen and women free of cost.

Dear Sir:-

Chief Moses is in trouble regarding the report that the priests are persecuting his people, because they refuse to become Catholics.

Will you please let me know if there is any truth in the matter, as Moses fears it will lead to trouble. He wants his people who are Catholics to remain that way, but not to use force with those who do not wish to be Catholics. He desires you to write him a letter on the subject. An early answer will be greatly appreciated by me.

Very respectfully,
Richard D. Gwydir.

Dear Sir:

Chief Mow is in trouble regarding the report that the priests are persecuting his people, because they refuse to become Catholics. Will you please let me know if there is any truth in the matter, or Mow fears it will lead to trouble. The worst people who are Catholics to remain that way, but not to cross over with those who do not wish to be Catholics. He desires you to write him a letter on the subject. An early answer will be greatly appreciated by me.

Dear General

Chaplain Howe
has undertaken ^{to} some good work - an Army Religious Newspaper and I have volunteered to help him a little - I thought I could do better than to get you to write - an article on, organizing the moral & religious work at a Post especially where there is no chaplain.
Can't you give us some suggestions that can be published for the benefit of the service. to give the paper a good article on that subject I know you can.

Yours truly
