Maj. Gen. Howard,

The minister here have a mean sayinm about the "dead line of 50" - by which they imply that after a man has dashed that climacteric he is on the down grade mentally as well as physically. Now there may be some general truth in all this saying which is as old as Horace, but it is not an absolute truth. Dr. Rankin has, humanly speaking, some ten years of good work in him; his record in the past is fine; his popularity in Washington almost unbounded; his ability as an or-

Sanizer and worker I consider first class; his hold on the conservative, large hearted and benevolent in this land is strong; his scholarship fair; his intellectual fitness beyond the average. For all and in all you cannot find a man, as it seems to ma, who has more of the desired qualifications and less of the objectionable characteristics than Dr. Rankin. Any other man has got to learn all the needs and possibilities of the situation. Dr R. knows them all now, and can if elected, as easily take the helm at once as if he had been on deck always.

To help you to easy reading of what that grand old poet, Longfellow, says about men being too old for work, let me call your attention to his famous lines in "Morituri Salutamus".

But why you ask me, should this tale be told

To men grown old, or who are growing old?

It is too late! Ah, nothing is too late
Till the tired heart shall cease to palpitate.

Cato learned Greek at eighty; Sophocles
Wrote his grand OEdipus, and Simonides
Bore off the prize of verse from his compeers,

When each had numbered more than fourscore years,

And Theophrastus, at fourscore and ten,
Had but begun his Characters of Men
Chaucer, at Woodstock with the nightingales,

These are indeed exceptions; but they show

How far the gulf-stream of our youth may flow

Into the arctic regions of our lives,
Where little else than life itself survives.

And have you recently seen in the newspapers that Rev. Dr. Edward Beecher, pastor at Parkville church, in New York, is 86 years old, and though six weeks ago he broke his leg, yet Sunday before last was able to preach a rousing sermon.

No , my dear General, you must find some better excuse than old age before you reject Dr. Rankin, and if you knew over and above all else I have said how much we need his good and wise counsels down here in matters religious and theological you would feel yet more inclined to send him here. At the rate of downward progress since Dr. R. left it will take but a few years to give Universalism and infidelity such a hold here that some of our churches can cell themselves Temple of Reason, and loudly preach the Gospel of Tom Paine and Voltairewithout any sentimental use of cheap phrases to hide the real meaning of their utterances.

Yours truly

I was very glad, however to have youopen the Convention and start us off in good shape. The Convention was very large and very successful in every respect except financially. We received but $6,000 in new subscriptions and that left $13,000 to be provided to carry us the rest of the year.

In sending the enclosed blank, I would call to your mind the fact that you have been giving us a generous subscription of $50.00 a year, and we would like youto do for us what you feel you can consistent with the many other calls, which I know, come to you, and which I know, so far as you can you respond to.

Gen. O. O. Howard,

My dear Sir:-

An effort is being made by various denominations to have the number of army chaplains increased by law to one hundred.

The matter is to be brought before our Congregational State Association next week and I do not know the merits of the case. May I ask your opinion as a favor to myself whether it is wise to petition congress for this increase?

Whatever you may say, I shall regard as personal for myself, unless you are willing that I should state your opinion.

May I beg the favor of an early answer for the sake of so important a question?

With great respect.
