

CLAUDE LeROY ALLEN, JUNIOR. Schooled for Harvard College in the great Phillips Academy at Andover, further buttressed by enlightened tradition, your rigorous apprenticeship as a schoolman was advanced by the tutelage of a headmaster whose name is legend. As a headmaster yourself you later reconstructed Hebron Academy and its Faculty on the firm foundations of discipline, high ideals, and scholarship, successfully solving the imponderables involved in bringing hale and hearty life to an institution which had grown moribund. Now enrolling boys from all corners of the United States and from abroad, this fine school Maine proudly claims sends on its graduates ready to surmount the rigors of collegiate education with equanimity and poise.
