

LLOYD DeWITT BRACE. Although a plainsman by birth, your New England tradition and livelihood, far from plain, is exemplified in your physical and intellectual courage, be it skiing the Headwall of Tuckerman's Ravine or implementing a complex business development worldwide in scope. Your financial acumen is attested by your many directorships, your broad capacities by your Fellowship in the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, and your human concerns by your trusteeships of two colleges, a hospital, and several foundations. Wisely choosing the shores of Penobscot Bay as your second home, you appreciate and blend the many beauties of Maine with your joy in nature. We delight as we make you a Bowdoin son, to make you that much more a part of Maine itself.
