

GILBERT DALLDORF, of Voorheesville, New York, native of Iowa, educated there and at the New York university Medical School, a student in Germany, respected at home and abroad as a leader in medical research, his discovery of the Cocksackie group of viruses has, alone, been a notable contribution to medicine; father of a Bowdoin son, he now becomes a Bowdoin son himself.

Honoris Causa, DOCTOR OF SCIENCE