

FREDERICK AUGUSTUS IRVING, Major General United States Army, Superintendent of the United States Military Academy at West Point which, like Bowdoin, opened its doors to a few students in 1802 and which this year has celebrated with distinction its sesquicentennial, courageous officer in the field with experience in both world wars, courageous also in the far more difficult task of administration where he has faced problems frankly and never dodged responsibility, always acting beyond the call of duty.

Honoris Causa, DOCTOR OF LAWS