

HARTLEY FREMONT SIMPSON, of the Class of 1922, graduating summa cum laude, a member of Phi Beta Kappa, his career devoted to university life, at Cornell, Pittsburgh, and for the past twenty-six years at Yale. Demonstrating superb scholarship in English history, particularly in 17th century Parliamentary history, and rendering impressive service in graduate education as an able administrator, he richly merits his position as Dean of the Graduate School at Yale University. From his beginnings in Tilton, New Hampshire, his studies brought him to Brunswick, on to New Haven, to Guildhall and Lambeth Palace. In all, he has displayed a scholar's mind, never satisfied, yet not afraid of generalization. Here is a man of deep understanding, full wisdom.

Honoris Causa, DOCTOR OF LAWS
