

FRANCIS HARPER SLEEPER, of the Class of 1922, leaving Bowdoin to complete his medical degree at Boston University; eminent psychiatrist who has proved his capacity as Superintendent of the Maine State Hospital at Augusta; untiring worker for those who, in his own words, have “forgotten how to live;” in addition to his arduous hospital duties he is a staunch campaigner toward better treatment for the mentally ill of Maine. Born in Aroostook County and after many years of absence again a citizen of his native State, he now becomes an honored alumnus of the College where he was once a student.
