

HENRY SLOANE COFFIN, a graduate of Yale, for the past eighteen years President of Union Theological Seminary, last year Moderator of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America; Fellow of the Corporation of Yale University; one of the few really great American preachers of our day; eloquent, militant, persuasive advocate of Church unity and social reform, recently returned from England where he carried the greetings of his Church and of the American people to the Churches of England and Scotland; appropriately honored by a college named for a French Huguenot family with its history entwined with influences from the independent Congregational Churches of New England, and with its traditions of unswerving adherence to religious liberty.

Honoris Causa, DOCTOR OF DIVINITY
