

ARCHER PARRIS CRAM, a former member of the Class of 1899, of New York City; who has now after twenty-eight years caught up academically with his classmates, none of whom have surpassed him in loyalty and few in ability; a splendid example of Maine stock and Bowdoin training in the legal profession of that great city which so sorely needs such a combination.

Honoris Causa, MASTER OF ARTS