

RIPLEY LYMAN DANA, of the Class (beloved to some) of 1901; Bachelor of Laws of Harvard University; Trustee of the College which he is serving with great fidelity and usefulness; able, fearless lawyer standing high in his profession, whose word no man ever questions; this past winter guiding with consummate skill and native Maine common sense a great community enterprise in Boston to relieve distress and alleviate through private charity acute social needs, showing what service the college graduate may render when he follows the guiding stars of duty and responsibility, and when he puts self and ambition aside and thinks solely of the task to be performed; gladly honored today by his college at the hands of his old college roommate.

Honoris Causa, DOCTOR OF LAWS
