

HERBERT JOHN FLEURE, Master of Arts and Doctor of Science, University of Wales; Professor of Geography at the University of Manchester; Visiting Professor of Geography on the Tallman Foundation here for the present academic year; one of the leading British scholars in his field with an international reputation, bringing to us not only the riches of his learning but the friendliness of his spirit; with wit and logic answering those who favor the liquidation of the British Empire, yet a liberal without a trace of imperialism; a Channel Islander by birth who knows as well as we do the full value of independence; an eminent scientist; now gladly and formally made a member of the Bowdoin family to which he and his gracious wife were by common consent admitted as soon as they set foot on Brunswick soil last autumn.

Honoris Causa, DOCTOR OF SCIENCE
