

The Honorands of The 2008 Commencement

Gina Kolata Doctor of Letters

Gina Kolata has reported on science and medicine for The New York Times since 1987. Before joining The Times, she was a senior writer for Science, and she has written numerous freelance articles for a wide variety of magazines. In her news articles and books she makes accessible to a wide audience the results of scientific research and the social, political, economic, and environmental issues raised by scientific inquiry. She was a Pulitzer Prize finalist in investigative reporting in 2000. Her books include Clone: The Road to Dolly, and the Path Ahead (1997), Ultimate Fitness: The Quest for Truth about Exercise and Health (2003), and Rethinking Thin: The New Science of Weight Loss – and the Myths and Realities of Dieting (2007), which was recently nominated for a 2008 James Beard Foundation Award. A native of Baltimore, Maryland, she graduated from the University of Maryland and studied molecular biology at MIT before returning to Maryland to earn her master's degree in applied mathematics.
