

DWIGHT WHITNEY MORROW, United States Senator from New Jersey; graduate of Amherst in the Class of 1895, along with Calvin Coolidge and Charles Burnett; Trustee of Amherst; adopting Maine for his summer residence; friendly advocate of the small college; whose career has been distinguished in finance and politics by his mastery of the art of conciliation; who as Ambassador to Mexico won for his country the friendly regard of a proud and ancient people; who possesses as much as any other man in public life today the unbounded confidence of the American people; in whom and in public servants like whom the future of this Republic stands secure.

Honoris Causa, DOCTOR OF LAWS