

JOSEPH SEWALL

Joseph Sewall, of the Class of 1943, son and grandson of Bowdoin men, you have contributed to the State of Maine as business leader and as exemplar of good management in the affairs of government. As president of one of the nation's leading timber and woodland surveying and engineering companies, you have promoted the cause of conservation and land management. As a public servant in local government, in the Maine House of Representatives, and in the Maine Senate where for an unprecedented eight years you served as president, you have carried out your exacting duties and responsibilities in a spirit of fair play and firmness. Your career shows us what good citizenship can be.
