

EDWARD FREDERICK LINDLEY WOOD, the Right Honorable, the Earl of Halifax, Chancellor of the University of Oxford, Ambassador of Great Britain, who has done so much to interpret his nation to us, and us to his nation, tireless in travel all over this extensive country and welcome and at home wherever he goes; ardent Churchman, wise statesman, recipient of many degrees but today receiving the first honorary degree conferred upon the Earl of Halifax; gladly admitted to our fellowship as a token, slight though it may be, of the admiration which Americans have for his nation and for Britain's stalwart defense and now onrushing offense in the great war, not only in title but in fact a noble gentleman.

Honoris Causa, DOCTOR OF LAWS
