In all, twenty-nine States of the Union had troops in the two contending hosts at Gettysburg, Maryland having commands in both armies.

The State of Virginia supplied one-fourth of the infantry, two-thirds of the cavalry, and nearly two-thirds of the artillery that invaded the North. The States of Virginia, North Carolina and Georgia furnished nearly three-fourths of the material composing the Army of Northern Virginia.

General Officers Killed and Wounded.

The following list comprehends the most prominent of the killed and wounded in each army, of the rank of general; or, who, with a lower rank, were filling a general's place at the time. Also, a few specially conspicuous names of those who fell at the head of regiments or batteries.

Forces Engaged.

Widely diverging figures have been given in regard to Gen. Lee's force. Immediately after the battle, on account of the lack of accurate information, the estimate was too high. The figures subsequently given by some southern authorities and by the Comte de Paris, were too low. The compiler of this Souvenir devoted months to the critical examination of all attainable information on this subject. A full chapter of his forthcoming work is devoted to its discussion. The result is:

Army of the Potomac.	Army of Northern Virginia.

The Confederate return of losses is very inaccurate and defective. Gen. Meade had over 13,000 prisoners; yet Lee returns but 5,150 missing men.

Many of Lee's organizations made no returns or only a partial one. From various data it can be stated that Lee's loss was about as follows:

Killed,	4,600
Wounded,	18,300
Unwounded prisoners and deserters,	9,000
Total,	31,900

The Gettysburg campaign commenced June 3d and ended August 1st, 1863. In that time there were 115 battles, engagements, actions and skirmishes. In all these the Federal loss was:

	Officers.	Men.	Total.
Killed,	288	3,271	3,559
Wounded,	1,288	15,256	16,544
Missing,	406	11,488	11,894

Gen. Lee's loss in the same time was about 33,200.

Items About Gettysburg.

One-eighteenth of the free population of the U. S., fit for service, fought at Gettysburg.

The Rebellion lasted four years. It comprised 892 fierce engagements. One-nineteenth of the Union loss of the whole war was at Gettysburg.

The killed and wounded of the two armies at Gettysburg surpassed the present population of the City of Harrisburg.

The only woman killed was Jenny Wade, a beautiful young lady, engaged at the time in baking bread.

John Burns, an aged citizen, fought in the ranks of the 1st Corps, in the first day's fight, until severely wounded.

The first soldier killed on the Gettysburg Battlefield was George W. Sandoe, belonging to a local cavalry company, killed in a skirmish, June 26th, 1863.

The 26th North Carolina went into the fight with less than 800 men. It reported 86 killed, 502 wounded; total, 588. This does not include 120 missing. In one company of 84, every officer and man was hit.

The first Minnesota went into battle with 252 men. It had 229 killed and wounded. 205 were killed and wounded in one charge, in less than three minutes time—75 being killed.

Pickett's division took 4,800 men into the charge. It left 3,393 at or near the Federal works, the slaughter occupying less than five minutes. Of four generals and fifteen regimental commanders, all were killed or wounded except Pickett and one lieutenant colonel, two brigade and twelve regimental commanders being killed.

In many of the regiments of Longstreet and Hill, every regimental officer and nearly every company officer were killed or wounded.

The "Iron Brigade," of Reynold's Corps, had 1,883 effectives. It lost 1,212. Roy Stone's "Bucktail" brigade had less than 1,200 effectives. It lost 852.
