My dear General

As I have heard nothing of the things you sent to me by Express up to this day. I thought I would write again to you and enclose a note I received from the Express Office at this place this morning. I am very much afraid that the things are lost, but if you have a receipt I will make them find the boxes or pay me the value, it has been a dreadful disappointment to me, for your kind letter telling me of their departure made my heart light and cheerful. as I thought of their arrival and now to lose them altogether is a great disappointment. I enclose a note of reference from the Express Office in this town. They do not seem to care much about them. Love to Mrs Howard.

I remain yours truly
Annie P. Lee

Dear General

I have sent in a Petition, addressed to Congress, praying for increase of Pension, and such influential letters as my friends sent me I have addressed to Senators Wilson, Chandler and Schenck. May I beg your influence in the matter dear General and that you will do all you can to get other Senators interested although I am sure those I have named, especially Hon Senator Wilson who has always strongly advocated the claims of a Soldier's Orphans - ^{have powerful influence} My present Pension is only $360 per year and as I have four children it is utterly inadequate. If you will see Senator Wilson on the subject I shall be truly thankful.

With high regards

Very respectfully

General;

I have the honor respectfully to address you in behalf of this literary society, to ascertain if your services can be obtained to deliver an address before this society at the commencement exercises of this College, which close on the 10th of July 1868.

Although our Institution is not as large nor as widely known as some others - because it is, comparatively speaking, in its infancy - yet it is growing very rapidly and promises soon to take its position among the first of Western Colleges.

If you should come, I think you would yourself acknowledge; that our little City (3000. inhabitants) and the surrounding Country, (Rolling prairie with light belts of timber) cannot be surpassed in this State for beauty; especially at that season of the year.

Our City is reached from Chicago by the Chicago & St. Western and a branch of the Milwaukee & St. Paul R. R. - from Milwaukee & St. Paul by the Milwaukee & Wisconsin and a branch of the Mil. & St. Paul R. R.

Hoping soon to receive a favorable reply, together with your Terms,
I am General

Dear General

It seems droll, that any one friendly to your cause sh^d insist that you did say, what you affirm that you did not say nor think - But I do not see what more we can do about it.

I hope you ^{will} have read the paper in which I made the correction you desired. I enclose a rejoinder cut from next days Democrat.

I sh^d be glad to know if my part has been done satisfactorily to you.

Neither of us will probably keep clear of

DR. NELSON'S CORRECTION.—The card of the Rev. Dr. Nelson, in yesterday's Democrat, compels the writer of the notice of Gen. Howard's remarks in Dr. Post's church, to reiterate the assertion that the General did speak of the coldness and want of liberality on the part of the regular churches in Washington, towards those who were temporary sojourners in that city—and upon this very idea is founded the National church. This remark of the General was not intended as a reflection upon the churches there, so far as regards their course towards their own members and citizens—in this respect no fault is to be found—but towards those who are temporary sojourners there the question is a different one. They go to Washington, filling clerkships in the departments for instance, but their homes and their church connections are elsewhere. These they do not choose to dissolve, but they go each to the church of his own denomination. Here they meet with no reception—no one receives them as brothers, and the coldness of this reception soon leads to their staying away from church. Such men must have somewhere to worship where they can look around upon the audience and know that all are influenced by a fellow feeling. This, we take it, was the spirit that led to the meeting of that little handful of sixty, of which General Howard spoke, and it was the coldness towards this class of men of which he certainly did remark. It is no reflection upon the Washington churches as to the fertility of their labors among their own citizens. F.

that has transpired ~~within the past~~

the past year, I am confident as to the balance of the programme being coming out according to the predictions. Hence I hope you will preserve these documents (howver weak

them in the manner suggested as soon as the blow shall have struck by A. J. through Grant, Sherman, the Southern rebels and the Fenians,
and not before.

I. M. S.

Cincinnati, Nov. 24, 1867.

Maj. Gen. A. C. Howard:

Sir - Permit me to inform you that this country is on the eve of another civil war - a war in which the religious as well as the political elements will be involved.
It will be precipitated upon the country through the treachery of Andrew Johnson and the Leaders of the Democratic party; and the Reconstruction laws, and other radical measures of Congress, will be the pretext.
Grant, Sherman, Meade (and probably Thomas) will go with the President.
The former has been promised, by "A. J."
the sum of $1,000,000 in gold, to be paid out of the National Treasury, and also the position of Chief Marshal of the prospective Empire, under His Majesty, King Andrew the First, as the price of his Loyalty. Sherman is also committed to the policy and fortunes of A. J. and through similar motives.

The war will probably come at such a time and in such a manner as to either prevent the next Presidential Election, or the succession of the successful candidate, should one be elected; as the Democrats are determined that we shall have no more Republican Presidents. Sheridan will be the coming Military man in the North; he will also be Military Dictator for a while in place of the regularly-chosen Executive of the Nation.

Please preserve this and give it to the public as soon it shall be determined on which side, in the coming conflict, for a final adjustment of our National difficulties, these two vile and infamous men (Grant and Sherman) array themselves, as it will, in a measure, counteract the influence of their example.

(Revelations from the Spirits of Washington, Franklin, Jefferson, Lincoln, etc.)
Truly Yours,
L. M. Smith.

P. S. Of course I do not expect that you, or any one else, will give full credence to the statements herein made, now; but if you will watch the course of political events, in Washington, this coming session of Congress, you will perceive them coming true as fast as ^{said} events can bring them around. No human power can prevent the collision between Congress and the President, as it is the only way in which our domestic difficulties can be settled upon a firm and equitable basis. The effects of the war, which will be short but desperate, will be the downfall of Democracy, so-called, and the end of Catholicism in this Country, as both will, thereafter, be forever politically and religiously ignored. The past elections will, in all probability, be the last, of general importance, in which the Democracy, as a party, will be allowed to participate; as all who take part in the coming conflict, on the wrong side of the issue, both North and South, will be forever disfranchised. Having been foretold, more than one year ago, nearly everything of importance
