I have from habit and love of the cause been hitherto contributing, but now see clearly that the power of such leaders must be broken, or the party will go to pieces. They must not be supplied with money. They must be shown of their inability to dispense offices. They must be expelled from their rulership.

I will resist and expose these men to the best of my ability. I will not give them money, or votes, or countenance. I defy their malice and will go right on in the line of duty quite sure that their time is short and that I, or others, will see their fall and casting out just as we have seen the fall and casting out of other conspirators who had far more of position, and power, and hope of success, than they ever had.

Ch^r. Finance Committee.

Dear Sir,

I have your letter of June 16 informing me that the needful expenditures of the Republican Association of the 21st District New York City in prosecuting the elevated purposes of the party invite voluntary contributions from its members. And kindly saying that I had been ever among the foremost in advancing those purposes, you also say that a contribution of material aid at this time will be serviceable to the cause.

Your name, your kind expressions, and your allusion to the elevated purposes of our party awaken strong feeling in me; for I have had a warm regard for you through many years, and the party found in me a member full of hope and of devotion from its birth. On days of darkness I stood with it as under Providence the means by which slavery and its tool the false Democracy were to be destroyed, and my country saved a Republic and made the joy of the world. They were a few that were resolved upon resistance, but they were determined and self-denying. The grand object called for all that could be done or given, and the offering was freely made. Being without influence in the government none could hope for reward, and corruption, the bane of parties, kept aloof. In this district the Republicans knew each other and their meetings were held with as much order, truth and honor as those of a religious Society.

Years have passed. We became victor over Slavery, false Democracy and Rebellion. We hold the Government. But alas! the attainment of power has called into exercise the arts of base men to seize and hold the machinery that controls party action, and now in this district it is as impossible for true Republicans to present a candidate for election as it is for them to nominate a candidate for the support of Tammany Hall. Two or three men whose trade is politics order every thing, and whoever is not their creature is marked for ruin if they can effect it. They assume to rule every where. They hire "roughs" in crowds from other parts of the City to attend the primary meetings and they mark and number and ticket them, and falsely pretend when their votes are received that they are members of our Republican Association. These roughs go away boasting how well they were paid, and the hands of true Republicans fall powerless as they see and say that the Primary meetings are a cheat and a snare.

This atrocity has been so widely spoken of that its perpetrators have come to defend it. Not pretending to deny the fact their abettors declare without shame the necessity and fitness of it, praising by name the guilty parties as liberal good fellows for being so.

The corruption of the Legislature and the Common Council fills men with alarm and indignation. But what hope can we have of better things when good nominations are made impossible by the frauds I have described?

No is this all. Base men who so dishonestly get control of the associations arrogate to themselves the right to fill the offices created for the public welfare. They have recently in this Congressional district claimed to apportion among them the subordinate places whose proper filling is vital to the Revenue, denying to the officer charged with the duty of nomination the privilege even of reviewing the names presented for appointment saying that "they would take the responsibility." And they have at the same time protested against a reduction of the number of these subordinates, as "inconsistent with the good of the party."

And the evening before your personal call which preceded your letter, in a large meeting of the association of the 21st District, upon the report of a committee raised to confer with the same officer respecting appointment to those places, a majority was brought by the well flourished cane of a chief conspirator against our common rights to adopt most unjust and improper language towards that officer, first prohibiting an inquiry of the committee toward compelling a confession that they had called on him but once, and then had been requested, for accuracy of understanding and report, to communicate with him in writing, for answer in like manner, which they agreed to do, and yet never did, though making such report.

The gross wrong of this act was apparent to every body, and this perhaps has hindered the leaders from publishing their poor report, although with so much effort they succeeded in carrying it. Happily there is a Public Opinion left, and they are amenable to it, and the more they creep out from their dark places the more they will be scorned and

Dear Tappenden

We are trying to raise $1000, as a present to Prof. Packard at next commencement, which is his 50th year in the College. He is the last of the old professors; he has always been faithful in his vocation and is not rich. It is thought to be a graceful thing for us to do something, and I have been requested to take charge of the matter. President Pierce, Woodman, Dodge, Shepley and others have subscribed $50, each Others $25. & others $10. Over six hundred dollars have been paid in. Would you like to join. If you, please send me your amount to be added to others, and please inform other graduates in Washington to hand their subscriptions to you or remit to me.

I know you are constantly troubled by applicants - for employ-be one of the number; but I could not, if I did not to support myself by my

Will you not, Gen., be kind

I will perform faithfully any work you may give me,

as a great many male clerks.

I have struggled hard this past winter and spring, to maintain myself and child-suffering from it.

I heard Gen. Balloch had can give me a place.

Please let me hear from Hoping you will grant my
