My dear Genl

While I was in the midst of the recent canvass for Governor, a Kinsman of mine - Capt James M. Davenport - got into a difficulty in Washington with a colored Justice of the Peace and, while frenzied with liquor, shot & wounded the latter.
Davenport is now in jail at Washington and his trial comes off sometime during the present month. I am not advised as to the facts in the case, but learn that Davenport is in danger of being sent to the Penitentiary.
This will be a hard fate for him, and it would distress me very much if any such fate should befall him. He was, in great measure, raised & educated by my mother, and is the son of a very dear uncle of mine.

He is splendidly educated, and now his present misfortune is, I doubt not, the result of strong drink. He is not a confirmed drunkard, but of late years has acquired that wretched habit. ~~He~~ He was on officer in the Union army, so as minded at Chickamauga, and lost a leg at Sweetens. For a few years past he has been in the employ of the Govt. in some of the departments at Washington.
His recent difficulty, I fear, arose out of some effort to garnish his wages as a clerk.

The wounded man is a brother to law of John W. Langston who is taking some interest in the prosecution.

Now, what I would be glad to have you do for me is to see Langston, and see if he & his friends will not "let up" in the prosecution. It can do them no good to have that one-legged soldier sent to the Penitentiary and disgraced. He has a wife & two small children dependent upon him for support.

I ask your intervention in this matter because, from your position, Langston will listen to you. It is, I know, asking a good deal of you - but when I think of the possibility of Davenport going to the Penitentiary, I have not hesitated to call upon you for this service - you can say to Langston

Sir-

Myself, and associates, have in course of building a new vessel, intended for Coast Pilot, and wrecking purposes, and to supply distressed vessels, with spars, Sails, provisions &c, Especially during the inclement winter months, upon our Coast.

It has been the custom, to name our vessels, after Merchants, and others, of this city, but, I believe, from the nature of their calling, they should bear the names, of the Eminent Men of America, those, who by their sword, upon the fields of battle, or at sea, or by their voice in our "National Legislative Halls," have demonstrated, and proven to the world, the value, of that Sacred word, Liberty. So dear, to every American Citizen, be they of native or foreign birth,

You Sir, by your valor and patriotism in the service of your Country, during her darkest hours of trial, have deservedly earned that title. And we desire that our "little Craft," Shall bear your name, and as she goes upon her errand of mercy, to relieve and succor, the shipwrecked Mariner, and starving Emigrant.
She will bear upon her "banner," the name of one Patriot, whose reputation is world-wide as a "Defender of Universal Freedom." As you are probably aware, our vessels can compete in point of speed and beauty; with the Yachts of the world; and while we are ex-pected to win many races, we are growing

Sail with lead them.

It has been customary from time memorial, for those, for whom vessels of any class, are named, to defray the bill of flag; in vessels of our class, about seventy five dollars, I would not mention this fact, Sir, but while I am the Captain, I am but one, of six equal owners, we shall be ready for launching, in about two weeks, (when the flags will be necessary,) after which, it will occupy about six weeks, to complete her for service.

We are not State, but U.S. Pilots, duly licensed, by authority of the Secretary of the Treasury, under Act of Congress.

This vessel, is the second, of a series; to be constructed, should the enterprise succeed, and while the object is, to relieve distressed humanity, and safely guide disabled vessels to a Haven; it cannot be otherwise, than remunerative, to the parties pecuniarily interested.

I am, Sir, a brother of the late Col John McLeod Murphy of this City, formerly State Senator, & Col of 15th N.Y. Engineers, he was a great admirer of your prowess, and patriotism, and it was his suggestion, that our "Craft" should be named, in honor of you, (he died June 1st last,) I have only (at hand) a newspaper obituary, of him, byd will be pleased, (if you will accept) to send you one printed for his immediate family.

Trusting Sir, that God will long preserve your health, to enjoy the blessings of a grateful people, especially, the emancipated race, who owe so much to you, I have the honor to be, very Respt^g Your Ob^t. Servt W^m-J^y Murphy ore the police to hunt them down, and it is no matter of any to him that the latter determinedly misunderstood the questions put him.

The counsel (Price) averred it was not an offence a person promised to fulfil a contract at any time, and he believed it was not only sound w not sound logic also that such cases could not deemed breaches of any statute.

Judge Dowling—That is doubtless true with re-ard to promissory notes and checks dated ahead; it you will remember this is an offence coming ider the head of "trick and device," for the punishment of which I think you will agree with me ere is ample statutory power. I find the prisoner ity, and, though it may seem somewhat para-tical, I shall give Winter summer quarters by inding him to the island for six calendar months.
The remaining cases were disposed of and the ourt adjourned at twelve o'clock.

THE SUICIDE AT THE GRAND CEN- TRAL HOTEL.

Coroner's Inquest To-Day.

Coroner Young held an inquest on the body of George G. Hathaway this morning, who shot himself in the left chest at the Grand Central Hotel yesterday afternoon.

Mary Moon, a domestic, testified to first discovering the deceased in a state of complete nudity, sitting in the bath tub, bleeding from a wound in the left chest. Several others in the hotel were examined, but nothing material bearing on the case was elicited, and the Coroner's jury rendered a verdict to the effect that the deceased came to his death from.

A PISTOL WOUND,

inflicted by himself, etc.

A letter was left by the unfortunate man in his apartment, directed "To my friends." The epistle was a beautiful piece of composition, and written in a very nice hand. In it he says that his habits have been extravagant, and from this a despondency had taken possession of him which he found it impossible to overcome. The letter mentions his wife, who has been dead about six years, his dear children and mother and father, in tender terms, and bids an eternal adieu to all.

At the time the deceased applied for apartments at the hotel, he requested the clerk to supply him with a suit of rooms containing a bath tub, so it is, considering the peculiar circumstances of

THE MANNER OF HIS DEATH, probable that from the first he contemplated terminating his existence by suicide. The father of the deceased is one of the wealthiest men in Vermont, and the reason for his not applying to him for assistance in the case of pecuniary embarrassment remains a mystery. He was at the time of his death treasurer of the Rutland Marble Works.

His remains will be interred by friends residing in this city, in the absence of his father.

Mr. Murphy was born in Westchester county, N. Y., on the 14th of May, 1827, and consequently was in his forty-fifth year at the time of his death. He comes of true stock. His father was a native of this city, and once represented Westchester in the Legislature. His uncle was Colonel Alexander R. Thompson, of the Sixth infantry, who fell at the head of his regiment while gallantly fighting the Indians in Florida.

Mr. Murphy's tastes early inclined toward a seafaring life. He loved the profession of a sailor and his parents, in conformity with his early desire for a life of adventure, placed him in the navy, which he entered as midshipman in 1841. While in the service he won the respect of his superiors and the esteem of those with whom he mingled of similar rank. He was brave to a fault, active and quick in the discharge of his duties, and seemed to take a just pride in his profession. He was stationed for five years in the Mediterranean and one year on the west coast of Africa. He was then relieved from duty abroad, and upon returning home was ordered to the brig Stromboli, upon which vessel he remained for about one year. After the Mexican war, through which he passed and in which he earned distinction as a brave and efficient officer, he was sent to the Naval Academy at Annapolis, where he graduated a passed midshipman, at the head of his class in seamanship. From the Naval Academy he was sent to one of the Collins steamships, in which he made a number of voyages. The assiduity with which he followed his studies is apparent from the fund of information to be found in his treatise called "Nautical Routine and Stowage, with short rules for Navigation."

Mr. Murphy's next service in the employ of the government was in connection with the expedition to explore the Isthmus of Tehuantepec. The party was in charge of Major Barnard, U. S. Engineer. Mr. Murphy was given in charge of the hydrographic operations, and entrusted with the climate, geological and botanical report. The latter contains abundant evidence of his knowledge of these branches of science. It is a full and complete account of his researches in these directions, and is written in a highly vigorous and exhaustive manner.

Mr. Murphy, in 1860-'61, tried to turn his abilities as a statesman to account. He entered the field of politics as a candidate for the State Senate. The district was hotly contested. Mr. Murphy rallied his friends to his support, organized clubs, and in other manners so thoroughly laid his plans that his opponent was defeated, and he earned the reward of his labors. His conduct in the State Senate was highly commended by his constituents. He was very popular with his party; even his political opponents conceded to him the virtue of honesty.

Abandoning politics for the service of his country in her hour of danger, he gallantly offered his services in the navy, and served with distinction under Commodore Porter, by whom he was highly spoken of for his courageous conduct at Vicksburg. Through all the trying positions of the war which he was placed, he never failed to do his duty fearlessly and earned the reputation of being one of the bravest officers in the United States Navy.

It was a small nothing but dried leaves which were well dryed so nothing could tell if it was built by a bird or not.

There were no birds seen near

The nest was built on the ground

Could you be with us some part of the session? Please let me hear from you if you can be with us.

Dear Sir,

Yours of the first inst is at hand, and in reply beg to say that I did write to Mrs Johnson at once respecting her grandson Nelson Ducket. I have delayed writing to her from the fact that during the past year Nelson has given no little trouble, and I did not wish to write until I could see at least some improvement in his behavior. I am happy to say that he is now doing a little better, he is more obedient and I think begins to get some idea of responsibility.
He is now attending school and I am using every means to induce him to apply himself to his studies, - he reads and spells pretty well, but cannot yet write, - if he is well disposed he can have the advantage of the best public schools in Massachusetts. Sometimes, myself and wife have despaired of raising any thing of him he was so desobedient, and unwilling to learn. We have hoped much, and born much with him, and several times have been on the point of sending him away. But dear Sir, we cannot not bear to give him up, and feel that if he left us, it would be only to go to some one who would misuse and prize and I cannot believe that God will allow it to be all in vain. He is naturally bright, very affectionate and winning in his ways, but seems to have an idea that he has a perfect right to do just as he likes a mild to possibly a word from god who howe ver do getal interest in his race would have a good influence upon him.

Thanking you for your interest in him
