General: I have your letter of 15th instants. Volume IX is the last published of the Official Records. The volumes that you saw at West Point were preliminary prints of Union reports only. Vols. 4, 5 & 6 of that set covered all of McClellan's operations with the Army of the Potomac.

Vol. XI of the Publication of Official Records will cover the Peninsular operations. It is in three parts, over 2700 pages in all, and the proof is needed for the indexes. If however you desire only to read the ~~of~~ formal reports either Union or Confederate, or both, I can lend you copies of the "preliminary prints" and will gladly do so.

OFFICE OF THE AMERICAN COMMITTEE OF THE STATUE OF LIBERTY,
No. 171 BROADWAY,

General
Commanding Officer,

Department of the State
Fort Omaha
Sib

Sir:

It is to the last degree important that the money necessary to the completion of the Pedestal for the colossal Statue of Liberty, presented by a popular subscription of the French people to the American people, in commemoration of the hundredth anniversary of our National Independence, should be immediately raised.

Appeal has been made by the Committee to all sections of the country to secure the necessary funds by popular subscription, in order that the Pedestal may be really erected by the American people, as the Statue was paid for by the people of France.

It has been suggested by an eminent officer of the United States Army that direct appeal should be made by the Committee to the officers, soldiers and sailors of the Army and Navy of the country, as well as to civilians, and it would seem to be peculiarly the right of those specially charged with the defense of the country to be represented in this great national work.

We, therefore, have the honor to address you, Sir, requesting that you would have the kindness to bring the matter before those under your command, in such manner as you may deem convenient, favoring subscriptions from them to the work.

It is not expected or desired that the officers, soldiers and sailors should subscribe large sums; but if subscriptions of even one dollar each by officers, and ten cents each by sailors and soldiers, could be obtained, the aggregate result would make the Army and Navy worthy and important contributors.

For the Committee,

J. W. DREXEL,

Chairman Exec. Com.

REPORT OF THE EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE TO THE
GENERAL COMMITTEE.

The Executive Committee have caused the General Committee to be called together, partly to report progress, but mainly to organize instant, systematic and efficient methods of raising the funds that are now imperatively required.

We have thus far secured by voluntary subscriptions the sum of ninety-four thousand and thirty-six dollars and fifty-four cents ($94,036 54), of which there has been paid out on contracts, and in various miscellaneous expenditures, the sum of nineteen thousand five hundred and ninety-one dollars and six cents ($19,591 06). The balance on hand will serve to complete the concrete work of the Pedestal to a height of about 52 feet from its foundation, leaving only a small sum in the treasury.

In order that the Committee may proceed with their work at an early day in the spring, it is to the last degree important that the money required for the completion of the Pedestal for the colossal Statue of Liberty be immediately raised. As the Statue is finished and nearly ready for delivery, the contracts must be given out at once for the necessary stone, which must be quarried during the winter, if the work is to be prosecuted early in the spring. Otherwise it must be delayed for a year, or indefinitely. The sum of $150,000 additional will be required to complete the Pedestal in accordance with the approved design.

With the necessary funds forthcoming, we can go ahead at once with the erection of the Pedestal, and get it completed during the year 1884, and have the Statue raised upon it, but without them the grand inauguration must be shamefully delayed.

The single peremptory, imperative, unavoidable question now is: How the Committee is to proceed in getting the required money? What is to be done must be done promptly, actively, efficiently and without fear of a want of success.

In view of this urgency, the Executive Committee would recommend to the General Committee the adoption of the following measures.

First—That each member of the General Committee be requested to solicit subscriptions from such of his personal acquaintances as he may think able and willing to contribute.

Second—That a Committee from each of the cities of New York, Brooklyn and Jersey City be appointed to make a personal canvass for subscriptions among the reputed men of wealth in those cities.

Third—That a Committee of three be appointed to consult with the several business Committees appointed last Fall and to reorganize them for immediate and effective service.

Fourth—That a Committee of three be appointed to confer with the Managers of Theaters and other places of amusement, and with the authorities of military and other organizations, to arrange a series of benefit balls, receptions, etc., in behalf of the Pedestal Fund.

Fifth—That a Committee of three be appointed to secure and execute various methods of small popular subscriptions through the Grand Army of the Republic, through trade and labor associations, and through local committees and individual exertions, whereby the aid of the people may be obtained, and every citizen of the Republic, wherever he may be, enabled to take part in this magnificent and patriotic enterprise.

In conclusion, the Executive Committee would take leave to observe that a grander nobler more distinguished, and more honorable task was never presented to the people of any country than is now presented to the people of the United States. They are asked to reorganize worthy the magnificent gift of a neighboring Republic (an ancient ally and a constant and present friend) made on the one hand, and the national independence, as evidence of its homage to the principles of liberty and of its admiration of the nation in which those principles are most effectively embodied.

Can we fail to make a noble response? Is there a man or woman within our whole broad land (the breadth now that is our own) capable of feeling the grandeur of such an appeal or unwilling to participate in the equal honor of giving it effect?

It is an occasion upon which all political parties, all religious modes, all so-called social classes, and all interests of trade and industry may unite to testify not only to their earnest love of their country but their devotion to the higher aims of Art which enrich, ennoble, dignify, and immortalize the minds of nations.

Resolved "That the Reverend Clergy of the several religious denominations be requested among the exercises of the coming Thanksgiving Day to mention the Pedestal enterprise to their respective congregations and to recommend a generous subscription to the fund."

Resolved "That a Committee of three (3) be appointed by the Chair to sit for two (2) hours each day to carry out the provisions of this report, and to do such other necessary work as may seem to them advisable after consultation with the Executive Committee."

On behalf of the Executive Committee.

REPORT OF THE EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

GENERAL COMMITTEE

The Executive Committee have caused the General Committee to be called together, partly to report progress, but mainly to organize instant, systematic and efficient methods of raising the funds that are now imperatively required.

We have thus far secured by voluntary subscriptions the sum of ninety-four thousand and thirty-six dollars and fifty-four cents ($94,436.54) of which there has been paid out on contracts, and in various miscellaneous expenditures the sum of nineteen thousand five hundred and ninety-one dollars and six cents ($19,591.66). The balance on hand will serve to complete the concrete work of the Pedestal to a height of about 22 feet from its foundation, leaving only a small sum in the treasury.

In order that the Committee may proceed with their work at an early day in the spring it is to the last degree important that the money required for the completion of the Pedestal for the statue of Liberty be immediately raised. As the statue is finished and nearly ready for delivery, the contracts must be given out at once for the necessary stone, which must be quarried during the winter if the work is to be prosecuted early in the spring. Otherwise it must be delayed for a year, or indefinitely. The sum of $100,000 will be required to complete the Pedestal in accordance with the approved design.

With the necessary funds forthcoming, we can go ahead at once with the erection of the Pedestal, and get it completed during the year 1889, and have the statue raised upon it, but without them the grand inauguration must be indefinitely delayed.

The single paramount, imperative, insistent, irresistible question now is: How the Committee is to proceed in getting the required money? What is to be done must be done promptly, actively, efficiently, and without fear of a want of success.

In view of this urgency, the Executive Committee would recommend to the General Committee the adoption of the following measures:

Fifth—That a Committee of three be appointed to secure and execute various methods of small popular subscriptions through the Grand Army of the Republic, through trade and labor associations, and through local committees and individual exertions, whereby the mites of the people may be gathered, and every citizen of the Republic, whatever his means, be enabled to take part in this magnificent and patriotic enterprise.

In conclusion, the Executive Committee would take leave to observe, that a grander, nobler, more disinterested, and more honorable task was never presented to the people of any country than is now presented to the people of the United States. They are asked to recognize worthily the munificent gift of a neighboring Republic (an ancient ally and a continuous and present friend) made on the one hundredth anniversary of our national independence, in evidence of its homage to the principles of liberty and of its admiration of the nation in which those principles are most effectively embodied.

Can we fail to make a suitable response? Is there a man or woman within our whole broad domain (the broadest now that the sun shines upon) incapable of feeling the grandeur of such an appeal or unwilling to participate in the signal honor of giving it effect?

It is an occasion upon which all political parties, all religious creeds, all so-called social classes, and all interests of trade and industry may unite to testify not only to their earnest love of their country but their devotion to the higher aims of Art which enrich, ennoble, dignify, and immortalize the annals of nations.

To Gen. O. O. Howard!

Sir! The staunchest friends of The National Tribune quail under its new departure. Its columns have been until recently perfectly free from the prevalent journalistic impurity of the day. It doesn't look like, like it now.

The G. A. R. made a mistake in deposing Vanderwoort. He should be reinstated next year. I see that Gen. Beath has recently been in Washington. Beath is thought to be a king's man. Vanderwoort is known not to be. The G. A. R. should have one peaceful, distinctive journal of its own.
