My dear Sir

We take the liberty to write you in reference to a George S. Torrance now of this place, who is a relative of our Mr. Torrance.

Mr. George S. Torrance is a Pensioner of the U. S. on the ground of Incapacity, which disability is increasing and we have through Kindness made an ~~attempt~~ application for an increase of Pension. He & his family are needy & deserving of an increase.

Upwards of a year ago he started unbeknown to his family for your

State and was gone nearly a year. He says while there ~~he~~ became acquainted with you and that you tried & did secure for him several situations but that he could not hold them & that you also loaned him money &c

Did you notice any thing abnormal in him in his actions or appearance or any things else that would be of service to him in procuring an increase of pension

If you did and would give us the points so we could prepare an affidavit for you to make in his behalf, it would

Genl. P. O. Hayward:

Much Esteemed Friend,
Almost a quarter of Century ago,
I promised to write you if I succeeded in accomplishing the Orphan-asylum work in which I was so intensely interested, when last I called on you for a pass to Adrian via of Cincinnati.
But successes, followed by so many seeming failures,

must be my only excuse for not fulfilling the promise long before this date, but I am sure pardon will be granted in reading a sketch of My Life Work, in the best and last copy of only 100 books
I had dressed in this style, of the 2,500, I had published, for which I paid over $1,500. Of the plain boards I have less than two dozen left.

Of my former School property, I have only $400 left, that I keep for my old age, (untouched for any benevolent object.) This is all I have of this world's goods, except the electotype and plates of 'A Woman's Life Work.' Agt. Genl. Robertson, of this State, devoted one page, of the last volume of his Report of Michigan, in the war, of the Rebellion, to my work. The G. A. R. frequently call upon me to give an evening on war recitals, and experiences. And have been frequently ^{asked, if I had applied} for a pension, as perquisite? I have invariably replied, that I rather see the soldiers have it. But we shall never receive a penny more, of less, for your receiving what is justly your due from Government. During the two years, I spent in the war, I rec'd no salary from any source. I only solicited money and car loads of supplies, for freedmen and Soldiers, and sought out the fields of greatest need of help. During this time, I was made the almoner of others bounties, that was strictly disbursed for the purpose designed by donors.

Please read the 12 Chapter, of 'A Woman's Life Work,' and write me your judgement in this regard. and you will also see the result of my hospitum mark. The State took the mark and planted it in Coldwater, where I followed it, and toiled two years in the State Public School. The cut of which you will see.

I trust this, and the book will reach you safely, and hope to hear from you after perusing the book. May God's rich blessings rest upon thee.
Sincerely yours Laura S. Davidson

Gen. O. O. Howard

Division of the Pacific

Dear General

San Francisco Cal

I have once before availed myself of your kind proffer of a helping word in the settlement of my railroad land claim, which, if you will recall, was complicated by the justly prior claim of Indian Enoch. You recommended me to the consideration of Mrs. Villard at the time of my application to purchase the land of the Company (the Indian's claim having been, by advice of the Ind. Dept., met by the payment on the part of the N.P. Co., of $2,000) according to the contract I had held six years. Owing to the fact that my representation of the case to the Ind. Dept. resulted in the additional cost to the Company of $1,000 more than they had offered for the Indian's improvements, they took offense at what they termed my obstructive interference, and refused to convey the land, although I offered to refund the $1,000 which I had unintentionally been instrumental in securing in behalf of Enoch.

Spokane Falls, W. T., 1887

I have made repeated efforts at compromise with no result, and last year proceedings were entered in law to eject me from the claim. The basis of their pleadings is that a recognition of the Indians intervening right to 80 acres of the land in question is an estoppel in law to my claim under the contract, and they propose to establish by witnesses that I formally renounced my rights, as ~~permanent~~^{conditional} on Enoch's. This I am positive I never did, in the sense that they interpret it. I have of course openly and at all times avowed that Enoch's equitable rights were prior to mine, and that the Interior Dept. should secure him in his patent; but up to the time of the settlement with the Indians I was obliged to concede that under the granting act the R.R. Co. held the legal claim.

Can you recall my having stated the situation to you, and whether you ever received the impression from conversation or otherwise that I intended to abandon my contract with the R.R. Co. irrespective of Enoch's claims? Your affidavit to your knowledge of the situation for use in testimony to be taken by a referee will be of great advantage to me in the impending trial - a reference to which I enclose you, clipped from the Daily Chronicle.

My broken limb has left me crippled to the extent of making me of little use in the Indian service and I am now publishing the Chronicle as a means of support. My family are all spread to me and we often speak of the pleasant relations we held with you while you were commanding this Dept.

of the good land beyond Jordan that make me homesick, at times, to be with Him and behold His glory. After more than sixty years march thro' the wilderness, I feel as Caleb and Joshua felt, when, ^{as} Israel was on the bank of Jordan, these two old soldiers stood at their post, with armor on, in the ranks, waiting for the sound of the trumpet, the signal for the advance in their march, across, dry-shod, into "that good land beyond Jordan," - "that goodly mountain," - Zion, - the heavenly Jerusalem, - through the gates into the city, - up the streets of gold to the "Sanct as it had been slain" in the midst of the throned, - and there, as we lay down our battered armor at the feet of our Great Captain, hear from His dear lips the words, "Well done, good and faithful servant," and the hands pressed for us our cavalry, place on our brow, "A crown of righteousness." - O what a march! O what a victory! O what a welcome! O what a crown! - There shall we meet.

My dear General Howard:

I assure you that it was with great regret we found ourselves unable to see you on Thursday last. On Wednesday in the cold room of a dentist I took a severe cold and hoarseness, from which I am still hardly able to converse. How much pleasure it would have given me to talk with you of that dear, dear Redeemer whom you love so well, and from whom you have received so many assurances of His tender and touching love.

No man touches the finest feelings of every noble heart more warmly and deeply than the man who combines the noble and self-sacrificing honor of the soldier, with the humble love and heavenward devotion of the consecrated christian. Said Pericles over his countrymen fallen in the first year of the Pelopon-messianic war; It is a debt of justice to pay superior honor to men who have devoted their lives in fighting for their country, though they are inferior in every virtue but that of valor. What then must be our feelings towards such men, ^{when} their other excellences are crowned with the refining, ennobling, and glorious courage of the living Christian. Love of country gives the unconquerable power to the courage of the patriot. What then must be the power of the courage in the Christian's soul, which springs from "the love of Christ which is shed abroad in our heart by the Holy Spirit" within us as a fountain of life.

Such courage has God given to you; courage to be "not ashamed of the gospel of Christ"; and to let your light so shine; your influence be such;— as to lead others, old men as well as young men, to follow you with confidence, alacrity, and devotion, not only to danger & death for your country's freedom, but in the fearful conflict against "principalities and powers and spirits of wickedness in high places," Satan and sin, for the glory of the Kingdom of Jesus Christ. That He of whom you can say, "Thou hast covered my head in the day of battle,"— that He may long spare you to continue to honor His name, and encourage others to "fight the good—honorable is the word in the Greek—fight of faith and lay hold on eternal life,"— this is my earnest prayer.

You must live many years before reaching my age. But be assured that to him who is "filled with the Spirit," the service of Jesus is daily more & more delightful. Glorious as your life has been in the past, it has the promise of a growing and deepening glory in the future. "The righteous shall flourish like the palm tree." The palm tree yields its richest fruit in old age. "They shall bring forth fruit in old age: they shall be fresh & green." Ps. 92:14. They shall be "fresh"—"full of sap," as it is in the new version because in living union with Jesus through the indwelling of the Holy Spirit. Thus is this dear Redeemer giving me, unworthy as I am, an old age rich with the fullness and freshness of His grace and love; and from Pisgah's top gives me revelations of His glory and glimmers
