My Dear General.

I take the liberty of sending to you a copy of my book, The Captain of the Janissaries, a tale of the Times of Scanderbeg.

It has been a pleasure to me to revive the memory of that old hero. I think that the picture I have drawn of him is historically accurate. If not, the deficiency must be attributed to the scant materials to be found in our libraries, and even among the legends of the Turks.

If its pages should beguile an hour or two of your leisure I
shall have accomplished
my purpose in sending it.

I am,

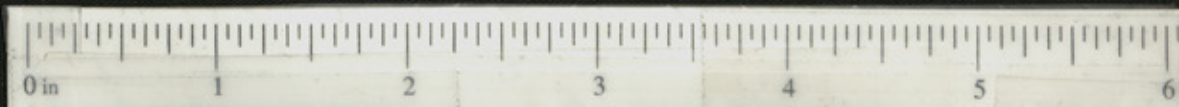

with great respect

Yours M. Ludlow.

Dear General: ~

I have a reminiscence I am constrained to give you, for your encouragement in speaking to children.

I came to this city from Portland in 1861. In 1871, my youngest son died here.

I will give you an extract which his sister wrote as a part of his Obituary.

"At a children's meeting in the Second Parish Church, Portland, (Dr. Payson's) Rev. Howard told the children of a prayer his little son used always to repeat:—

'O Lord, for Christ's sake, give me thy Holy Spirit.'

In a S. S. Concert, Dr. Cananther told the children he would like them always, morning and evening to remember and repeat this prayer:—

'Lord Jesus, give me a new heart to love and serve thee.'

Georgie never forgot to add these two little prayers, in his supplications."

I have been in the Class in the Central Cong. S.S. since 1870.

Judge Henry Carter of Haverhill, formerly of the Portland Advertiser, was my guest, not long since, and we attempted to call on you, but you had left the Island.

Later, at the Centennial of the Inauguration, ex-Vice President Hamlin was my guest, and we attempted to go to the Island, but you were away.

I can think of 5 or more
dear families in this Society.

I write this, as I shall not be likely to have the opportunity of speaking to you.

Very truly and
fraternally yours

Geo. H. Shirley

Dear Sir

Genl Corse suggested that I should write to you about a large historical picture I am now painting representing a number of those who took part in the late war. I am anxious to have your portrait in the picture. I have already secured sketches and studies for this picture of Genls Sherman, Rusk, Fairchild, Augur, Wiley, Corse and many others that would make a list too long to write.

Genl Corse informs me that you are expected to visit Boston this month. I write to ask if I can count on your kind cooperation to the extent of giving me one sitting of less than two hours time to make a sketch of your head. I could at that time show you the preparatory

Frank Wheaton,
Brevet Major General, U.S. Army,
Colonel 2nd Infantry.

Headquarters Second United States Infantry,
Fort Omaha, Nebraska,
May 21, 1890.

Dear General: -

My friends in Washington are presenting my claims to promotion before the President and Secretary of War and have received numerous indications that my service has been highly considered, both at the White House and at the Department, and assurances that advancement will come to me before very long.

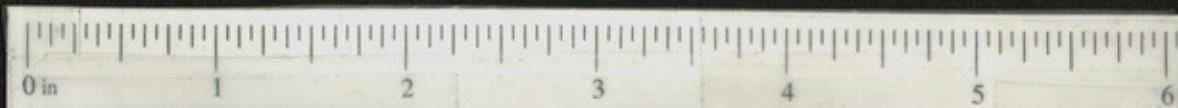

I have never, until now, complied with the earnest solicitations of friends and taken any steps to prevent being jumped by juniors. I have asked those who are working in my interest to state that I can patiently wait until the few seniors, who have a record, are cared for, as I would do nothing to antagonize the claims of those officers who, either through service or influence, were made my seniors when the Army was reorganized on a basis of field service, as far as was practicable, in 1866.

Of the [70] seventy Colonels in the Army, I am the 4th, fourth, of the line of the Army in rank: - Smith, Andrews and Kautz the three above me. As neither Smith or Andrews were Generals, or exercised large commands during the War of the Rebellion, perhaps their claims may be passed over by the War Department, and Kautz, who was a gallant Division Commander in Butler's Army of the James, be given the next vacancy, as I hope will be done.

I find many of my juniors have not this view and are bringing powerful influences on the President to ignore the claims of Kautz, mine and those of many below us both.

Next July I will have been forty continuous years in the public service, thirty-five of them as an officer in the Army, and take the liberty to enclose to you my record of service. I believe that I am the only officer in the Army today who was so fortunate as to have been engaged in every battle and campaign of the Army of the Potomac from the 1st Bull Run to Lee's surrender and to have been in all of Sheridan's Shenandoah Valley battles besides. Except on two occasions, once to attend a funeral and once to visit for three days a sick parent, I was not absent from the front or away from my command during the Rebellion.

I should highly appreciate a letter from you to file with other testimonials at the War Department, and enclose a certified copy of one written by my present immediate commander, who, by the way, is the officer of all others in the Army, most familiar with the efforts made by political enemies of my honest old quartermaster to ruin him and injure me, by forcing the two courts of Inquiry that were held at Fort Coeur d'Alene some years ago. Brooke was the President of one of these Courts and spent weeks in the most thorough investigation of affairs there.

I served under you with great pleasure in the Pacific Division and hope to be in your command again.

Mrs Wheaton joins me in warm regards to you and yours; hoping to hear from you at your early convenience, I am General,

Yours faithfully,

To

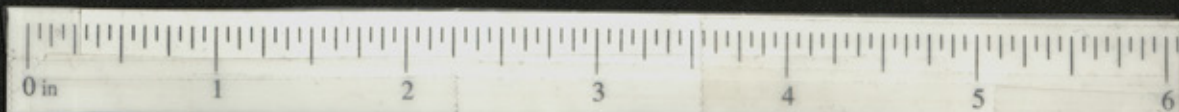

Major General O.O. Howard,

Headquarters Department of the Platte,

To the Honorable,

The Secretary of War,

Sir:-

I would respectfully invite your attention to the record of B't Major General Frank Wheaton, U.S. Army, Colonel 2d Infantry, and his eminent fitness for promotion to the grade of Brigadier General.

General Wheaton's record during the War is a part of the history of the country. As Brigade and Division Commander in the 6th Army Corps, his services were such as to place him among those who gave to this Corps its particularly brilliant standing among the many gallant organizations forming the Army of the United States during the War of the Rebellion.

It is needless for me to enumerate General Wheaton's gallant services, for they must be a part of the records of the War Department.

I would recommend him as eminently fitted for advancement to the grade of a General Officer.

I am, Sir,

Very respectfully,

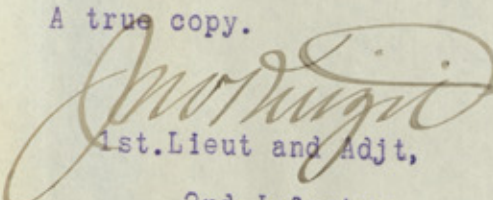

Your ob't servant,

[S'gd] John R. Brooke

CIVIL AND MILITARY RECORD OF
FRANK WHEATON,
BREVET MAJOR GENERAL, U. S. ARMY,
COLONEL SECOND U. S. INFANTRY.

FRANK WHEATON was born in Providence, Rhode Island, May 8, 1833. Educated for the profession of Civil Engineer at Brown University, Providence, Rhode Island, from which institution he has received the degree of "Master of Arts."

July, 1850, was appointed an Assistant on the United States and Mexican Boundary Survey, under Commissioner John R. Bartlett, and Chief Engineer and Astronomer Colonel J. D. Graham, U. S. Topographical Engineers. August 22d to December 1st, 1850, engaged as Assistant Engineer on survey of road from Indianola, Texas, to San Antonio de Bexar and El Paso del Norte, N. M., under immediate direction of Lieutenant A. W. Whipple, U. S. Topographical Engineers. December, 1850, to January, 1852, employed with Topographical parties on the survey of United States and Mexican Boundary, from near Mesilla, N. M., to San Diego, Cal. January to May, 1852, on surveys with U. S. Topographical Engineers at San Diego, San Francisco and Sacramento, Cal. May, 1852, to September, 1853, on Government surveys and reconnoissances, between San Diego, Cal., Janos, Sonora, El Paso del Norte, San Antonio de Bexar, and Port Lavacca, Texas. September, 1853, to August, 1854, in United States and Mexican Boundary Survey Office, in Washington, D. C. August, 1854, to September, 1855 employed on re-survey of Mexican Boundary, as Chief of Reconnoissances, under orders of Major W. H. Emory, U. S. Topographical Engineers, Commissioner, etc. While engaged on these various surveys and reconnoissances between San Antonio, Texas, El Paso del Norte, Texas, and Fort Yuma, California, encounters with hostile Comanches, Lipans, and Coyotero and Mescalero Apaches were frequent, and his services were made known to the War Department by Engineer and other army officers, resulting in his receiving at Los Dos Nogales, Sonora, Mexico, in August, 1855, the appointment of

FIRST LIEUTENANT FIRST REGT. U. S. CAVALRY,

MARCH 3, 1855.

Assigned to and joined Company "E," 1st Cavalry, then being recruited at Harrisburg, Pa., November 2, 1855. At Jefferson Barracks, St. Louis, Mo., November 8, 1855.

March 12, 1868, assigned to duty in New York City, as a member of the Army Retiring Board; remained on this duty until the Board was dissolved, November 13, 1868.

December 30, 1868, resumed command of Regiment, New Orleans, La. In May, 1869, ordered from New Orleans, La., to Arizona Territory, and transferred as LIEUTENANT Colonel to 21st Infantry, commanding Northern Arizona actively engaged in conducting field operations against Apache Indians. In October 1871, ordered to command of 21st Infantry, Headquarters at Drum Barracks, near Wilmington, California. In 1872 assigned to the command of the District of the Lakes, Oregon, Headquarters at Camp Warner, Oregon. Actively engaged in conducting field operations against Modoc Indians in the Lava Beds in 1872 and 1873, resulting in the capture and execution by Executive order of Modoc chief, "Captain Jack," and his head man at Fort Klamath, Oregon, to which point his District Headquarters were transferred in July, 1873. Quiet in Southern Oregon being restored he was assigned to command at Fort Walla Walla, Washington Territory, October 5, 1874. December 15, 1874, was promoted to Colonel of 2d Regt. Infantry. Roads from Walla Walla not being open at that date, was retained in command at Fort Walla Walla until May, 1875, ordered to duty with present Regiment. Until July, 1877, was on duty in Department of the South Regimental Headquarters 2d Infantry at McPherson Barracks, near Atlanta, Georgia. When Nez Perce outbreak occurred in Idaho Territory, was ordered with Regiment by rail across the continent to San Francisco, California, thence by water up the Pacific Coast, and Columbia River and Snake River, to reinforce troops from the Department of the Columbia operating against the Nez Perce Chief "Joseph;" reporting to General Howard then in command of the Department of the Columbia. Was assigned to command of left column of the Nez Perce expedition and ordered to march to the Mullan Pass through the Spokane and Coeur d'Alene country, to protect that region against threatened depredations by disaffected Spokane and Columbia River Indians. August 22d, while operating in the Spokane country, this column was ordered south to the Clear Water Valley near Fort Lapwai, Idaho, to prevent Chief Joseph's return to that section, and to protect that region against marauding bands of hostiles, two companies of the 2d Infantry were by General Sherman's direction left in the Spokane Valley to guard settlers at a point where the City of Spokane Falls now stands. After the close of the Nez Perce campaign of 1877, remained with Regimental Headquarters and several companies in camp and at Fort Lapwai, Idaho. When the Bannock outbreak in Idaho and Oregon occurred in 1878, under General Howard's direction he again took his Regiment and mounted companies serving with it, into the field, operating in the vicinity of Cayuse Station and the Malheur reservation, until the close of field operations, when he returned with his command to Fort Lapwai, Idaho. In August, 1879, was ordered with Headquarters of Regiment and four companies to Fort Coeur d'Alene, then being built in the Spokane, Calspell and Coeur d'Alene Indian country. Remained in command of 2d Infantry in that section of our frontier, while it garrisoned for longer or shorter periods, Camp Harney, Mount Idaho, Fort Townsend, Fort Colville, Washington Territory; and Fort Spokane, until July, 1886, building military posts and telegraph lines, guarding the construction of the North Pacific R. R. and protecting an extensive portion of our remote Northwest. During the temporary absence of permanent Department Commander was on several occasions assigned by the War Department to the command of the Department of the Columbia. After nearly ten years of continuous isolated and arduous service General Sheridan recommended the transfer of the 2d Infantry to its present station, Fort Omaha, in June 1886.

In July, 1866, General Wheaton received from his native state, Rhode Island, a sword of honor, inscribed:—"Presented to Brevet Major General Frank Wheaton, U. S. Volunteers, for gallant and meritorious services during the war, and especially at the battles of Opequan, Fisher's Hill and Middletown, by the State of Rhode Island, through James Y. Smith, Governor," in conformity with a resolution of the General Assembly, passed at the January Session, 1865.
