My dear Sir

Though I feared when I saw you last night that I should not be able to find time to call upon you at Governor's Island, I did make the attempt today. I went as far as the Ferry, but there was no boat there, and I found that if I waited long I should have time

If we cannot see eye to eye upon the subject of peace, we may work together, I hope, to bring public ~~for~~ opinion to the point of demanding that international arbitration & not war shall be the future arbiter in international disputes.

My dear Sir:-

Knowing of your deep interest in Christian work, and especially of the work of the Young Men's Christian Association, leads me to take the liberty of addressing you with a view to securing you, if possible, to deliver a brief address at the Anniversary of our Department on the evening of November 5th. I am sure that there is no engagement you could make, where your presence would be more highly appreciated than on this occasion. The President of the D. L. & W. R. R., Mr. Samuel Sloan, as well as his son Mr. Wm. S. Sloan, vice-president, are deeply interested in our work, and your presence would certainly be a source of gratification to them as well as to the other officials. There will be one or two other speakers also, and we are arranging quite an elaborate program. Our rooms are at the terminus of the Barclay and Christopher Street ferries, thus being quite convenient, and the boats

My Dear General:-

Enclosed please find two Platform tickets for our grand meeting Saturday evening.

Will it be possible for you to be present, and if agreeable address the meeting? Kindly reply on receipt of this.

I ask this as a personal favor and for the good of the cause. You are so extensively known in all good work, and your influence and presence will be far reaching. We are trying to lessen the number of saloons; and few words from you just at this time, would do much good. I don't know how you stand on the temperance movement, but knowing you to be engaged in so many ^{good} enterprises, I have ventured to make this request. Should you, Mrs. Howard and friends prefer to sit with my family, provisions have been made for you in Box E, where Dr. Talmage and Gen. Woodford will be also.

NOTE.—Special

of Address

Americans never seem to have got rid of the idea that at some future time the interests of the United States and Great Britain may again be in close conflict. In view, perhaps, of the possibility of another great war between the two Powers, American Ministers have awoke to the knowledge of the fact that their coast defences are not what they should be. General Howard, commander of the Department of the East, which includes all the States on the Atlantic seaboard, devotes considerable attention to this subject in his annual report, which has just been issued. He points out that England has now four harbours on the coast, so situated as to give convenient coaling stations to the fleets operating in the North Atlantic, and particularly in the West Indian waters. In case of war, he adds, these harbours would give a basis from which to operate against the United States. Apart from these considerations, there are other reasons, General Howard says, why the United States should be as strong in the neighbouring seas as any other Power, and even as well prepared as Great Britain—such reasons as the maintenance of a civilised Government in certain West Indian Islands, and the protection of American investments in countries where disorder to a great extent prevails. But it is obvious that the chief reason why General Howard should desire the fortification of harbours at convenient intervals along the entire Atlantic seaboard is, that under the present condition of things Great Britain is absolute master of the situation. It is true that since the commencement of the construction of the new navy of the United States, this country, for the purpose of preserving her influence in American waters, has strengthened her fleet on the New World side by substituting vessels of greater power for those which were formerly stationed there. Thus, mutual distrust may be said to exist between the United States and England. The former is ambitious: the latter watchful. Doubtless any Power should be prepared for whatever emergencies may arise; but so long as Yankeeedom restrains her propensities for making herself rich at the expense of other people, there is little danger, at all events as far as England is concerned, of an interruption of the friendly relations which have existed between the Powers for so many years.

Your very kind acceptance of our invitation to address the Convention of the Hudson County Sunday Schools has been handed to me for reply. The problem confronting us is the same as in New York, a large inflow of a population, largely foreign, who take but little interest in the Churches, We ought to reach in some way the younger portion by our Sunday Schools. and we think your suggestions will be of great benefit to our workers in what is a difficult field. My dear General Howard,

Many Months ago you wrote me a letter full of kind and tender sympathy, for which I thanked you sincerely, for kind words were comforting to me, and the warm-hearted expressions with which you recalled your associations

With Colonel Morrow were more than gratifying to me. It did seem to me in the desolation of my grief that I could never write or ever again do any thing. But fortunately perhaps, for me I was forced to think, to write and to act. The Army home must be broken up - the dear old friends must be left - and I with the dear children must seek another life and another home. How bitter and how trying all this has been I will not dwell upon. This much I must say, that you may understand I was not indifferent to your very, very kind letter. You have perhaps, heard from others of dear Colonel Morrow's failing health and of the brave fight he made for life - but you would expect courage from one so noble and brave from one who was never faint hearted under any circumstances was for several years you a friend of Washington and a member of the 8 Street Baptist Church. Rev. Dr. Sarason, President of Columbia College was my pastor and friend.

Quint, later I owned a newspaper in Washington and another South. Many many times have I reported your lectures and addresses, and many times have you grasped me warmly by the hand. But all this is past. I can only write the truth. I have been well off; I am now suffering dire affliction. Have been very sick for some time, and am not improving. Am in a charity hospital,

I have just been appointed as Caretaker of our Church, the 1st Pres.
