

My dear Sir:-

I write to solicit your opinion upon several questions upon which I have been thinking deeply and beg that you will take the time and trouble to give me an early reply.

1. Do you not think that more Chaplains should be provided for the Army? There are 34 Chaplains and 106 Posts.
2. Should not the age at appointment be limited to 34 years, so as to insure at least 30 years of active service?
3. Is not the Army a good field for the labor of an active, cultured and earnest Chaplain?
4. Is it not reasonable that a Chaplain should have the pay of his rank, as do all other officers?
5. Would not an expenditure for Chapels, gymnasiums etc., and a moderate assignment and equipment of rooms for such work as is done by the Young Men's Christian Association of our cities be likely to promote contentment among soldiers and be helpful to discipline?

Hoping to be favored with a reply, I am,

Sincerely Yours,

My Dear General:

I am trying to collect the orders, correspondence, &c., relating to the military operations during the rebellion, which, on account of being in the possession of individuals, and for other reasons, were not accessible at the time the several volumes of the War Records appeared. In prosecuting this inquiry I find evidence of a telegram having been sent by President Lincoln to General Meade, in which he takes exception to the failure of the latter to follow up and attack General Lee after the Battle of Gettysburg. The telegram itself is not in President Lincoln's dispatch book, nor is it in the possession of Mr. Nicolay, the custodian of his papers. The meagre allusions to it in the records of the Army of the Potomac would indicate that it had been transmitted, by General Meade, to the several corps commanders. Will you not kindly look over your retained papers, and if you find the telegram in question, will you not please cause a copy to be made and sent to me.

Three telegrams have been printed in the War Records upon this subject. One of them will be found in Vol. 27, Part 1, Page 105, and is a telegram from President Lincoln to General Halleck; at Page 139, same volume, is a letter, or telegram, from President Lincoln to General Meade, declining to order a Court of Inquiry, in response to General Meade's request, of March 15, 1864, which will be found at Page 127 same volume. In Volume 29, Part 2, Page 332, is another telegram on the same subject. These are all that have appeared in the War Records, and you will see, by examining them, that none of them exactly covers the subject above referred to. If you are not successful in your search, will you not kindly advise me, and believe me,

File

My dear General:-

Sergeants of the Signal Corps receive $34.00 per month, quarters and rations, but the latter can not be commuted at military posts.

I did not suppose that the pay would be sufficient to attract a man of the attainment of your operator to the service permanently, but as it was understood from your letter that you would probably have a vacancy in the General Service in a few months, the offer to enlist him was made only with a view of tiding over the time until such vacancy occurred.

As there is considerable pressure for enlistment in the Signal Corps, I will be obliged if you let me know within four or five days your decision in the matter.

Very truly yours,

A. W. Seely

ATTORNEY HAMILTON IS INDIGNANT.

He Makes a Pointed Argument for a Receiver for the Assets of S. A. Kean.

Attorney Hamilton made the concluding argument yesterday on his motion for a receiver for the assets of S. A. Kean. He referred to a conspiracy between Kean, Assignee Jacobs, and Mr. Warren to defraud the minority creditors, and he frequently used the word "dishonest." He denied that a majority of creditors in number and amount of claims could "rob" the minority. If the law was as defined by defendant's counsel a man could fail four times a year with profit. It was a shock to the very sense of justice. Could it be possible that the Legislature enacted a law which would enable a debtor to defraud his creditors out of every cent? These complainants could not begin attachment suits because the estate was tied up in the bank. They refuse to settle, what then? The defendants procure a discontinuance and an order conveying the property to a stranger, and by some "deep scheme" this trust property was thrown to the wind, and complainants were told that no one was responsible and there was no remedy.

"Our property was not stolen in the County Court," Mr. Hamilton shouted. "It was stolen after it was taken out of court, and as a result of a conspiracy between the defendants to pocket it. The County Court gave up its jurisdiction, and it would be a strange state of affairs if a court of equity could not compel the defendants to disclose and give up the property because the County Court once had jurisdiction of the case. The defendants don't pretend to say that the estate was administered in the County Court. No money was paid out except to the assignee and the lawyers. Jacobs, as assignee, never paid $1 to creditors. While the County Court had a right to discontinue the proceedings, that did not deprive the creditors of the rights they had in the trust property before the assignment was made."

Mr. Hamilton will resume this morning.

LOOKING FOR A MILLION.

Another Big Scandal Alleged in Connection with the Recent Failure of Banker Kean.

CREDITORS ARE ON THE HUNT FOR SOME MISSING ASSETS.

They Claim that There Has Been a Conversion of Property for Some Years.

ONE OF THE EX-BANKER'S FRIENDS GIVES THE THING AWAY.

He Is Credited with Exposing the Job After a Quarrel with His Principal.

On the express understanding that his name should, for the present, be suppressed, a gentleman this morning told the following astonishing story to a JOURNAL reporter concerning the recent charges brought by ex-Governor Hamilton against S. A. Kean of secreting assets just prior to his failure. THE JOURNAL'S informant occupies a high position at the Chicago bar, and his statement was made voluntarily and in entire good faith.

"One hundred thousand dollars does not begin to cover the amount of property and securities which Mr. Kean has placed beyond the reach of his creditors. One million dollars is much nearer the mark. I think Kean's plan for laying up a snug nest egg for himself has been going on for years. A trusty friend of Kean's has had a disagreement with him, and you know what happens when men like these fall out. For years, it is claimed, Kean has been placing property—real estate—in the hands of those he thought he could trust—taking from them a secret trust deed. This friend of Kean's who fell out with him is now engaged in preparing a list of this property and the names of the persons in whose possession it is at present, and it will be handed to the proper parties. The names of one of these parties and a description of the real estate conveyed is already in my possession. I can not say more, because it would perhaps defeat the ends of justice."

Nor is this all. Shortly after the failure it is charged that Messrs. Kean and Jacobs executed to Everett M. Warren, a clerk in the American Trust and Savings Bank, a deed for all the assets of the defunct institution. Warren, in turn conveyed these assets to some unknown party. An order was obtained from the County Court after the deed was delivered to Warren, discharging Jacobs absolutely as Trustee. This put the case beyond the jurisdiction of the court. It is now charged that even those creditors who have consented to accept the 35 per cent compromise offer have not been paid anything on their claims. They are in the same boat with those who refused to compromise.

The fact that Mr. Kean has not engaged in any business since his failure, and though confessedly without means of support save what may be derived from his wife's estate, lends color to the rumor that he had property held somewhere in trust for him, from which he derived an income. Kean lives in quite as good style as a bankrupt as he did when solvent.

At the meeting of the Board of Drainage Trustees this afternoon all the members except Mr. Wenter, who is laid up with a splinter in his eye, were present. Only routine business was on the programme. Mr. Russell, who was seen by a JOURNAL reporter before the meeting was called, was asked:

"What do you think will be the probable outcome of Mr. Prendergast's overthrow at the last meeting?"

"It means simply this," replied Mr. Russell, with considerable emphasis, "that Prendergast is downed, and if I am not mistaken for good, too. It is a blessing to this community and the Commissioners, who have been elected to represent the people of Chicago, that Prendergast has at last run up against a stone wall. That man while one of the brightest men I have ever known, is one of the most dangerous that could be elected President of the Drainage Board. He is an autocrat—a one-man power, a would-be czar—and he has administered things with a relentless hand. He has insulted me and every other man on that board a hundred times. He insults everybody. His disgraceful methods drove Mr. Willing out of the board, and he simply abused Mr. King, one of the cleverest gentlemen that ever lived, until he left the board discouraged, disgusted and sick of heart. What show have we ever had to demand justice or fair play? None in the world. What do we know about the business of the Drainage Commission? We have been trying to find out something for two years and we don't know anything yet. And if we don't know anything about it, please tell me what chance the citizens and taxpayers of Chicago have to know anything? It has been a case of non est. We simply did not exist."

"Do you infer that there has been anything crooked in the transactions of the board?"

"I don't infer anything. I put the matter in the light in which it would be regarded by any business man. See this book. Hundreds of resolutions have been introduced with the object of bringing light on the operations of the board. Has any action ever been taken in regard to them? Not in a single instance. It is an old saying that truth does not fear the light of day. If everything has been honest, fair and square, why do Mr. Prendergast and his satellites try to kill every resolution calling for an investigation? If there has not been something wrong somewhere, why are the records zealously kept from the public? Why, I remember, on one occasion that I said to Mr. Hotz:

"Look here, Hotz, I would like to know what is going on here."

"Well," replied Hotz, pompously, "there are the books and the plans and the maps. Go in and look at them."

That made me tired. I looked at Hotz for a moment and then said, 'Hotz, your suggestion has as much sense in it as to tell a school boy to read a Greek Bible. You know as well as I do that not one business man in a hundred could get the slightest information from a pile of intricate maps and drawings only intelligible to an expert engineer.' But they have always been very careful that no experts should make a report."

"Does Mr. Wenter feel as you do about these things?"

"Of course he does. Prendergast has insulted Mr. Wenter times innumerable. Wenter is a brave, smart, honest man. He has stood up and fought Prendergast for two years, tooth and nail. Where Prendergast gets his power I don't know. There is some influence backing him up of which we know nothing. There is something back of it all. And I am inclined to think that that resolution at the last meeting will bring that something to the surface before long. Oh, we are all sick and tired of Prendergast. We had a joint meeting with the

Being familiar with the Spanish language, and having had a large experience in this class of cases in the General Land Office and the Courts, we feel assured that we possess superior facilities for conducting this business.

Care of War Department,

Washington, D.C.

Dear Sir:

We beg to acknowledge receipt of your favor of Nov. 27th, advising us that General Howard has no distinct recollection concerning the facts relating to the death of Louis Weber, about which we inquired some days ago. We notice your reference to Col. Marcus F.
Miller, of Fortress Monroe, Va. Please accept our thanks for the courtesies shown in your reply for General Howard in relation to this claim.

Very truly yours,

Examiner Bureau of Claims

John W. Windsor

General Manager

March 4, 1891.
We have made special preparation to give attention to cases coming before "The Court of Private Land Claims," established the act of March 3, 1891, involving title to lands in Colorado, Nevada, Wyoming, New Mexico, Utah and Arizona under Spanish and Mexican grants.
Being familiar with the Spanish language, and having had a large experience in this class of cases in the General Land Office and the Court, we feel assured that we possess superior facilities for conducting this business.
We also give special attention to cases in the Court of Claims to recover compensation for Indian depredations under the act of March 3, 1891.

1037 Fifth Ave., 4 Dec. 1891

Gen C. C. Howard, U. S. A

General:

From a letter received from a countryman of ours long in voluntary exile in Mexico, I quote:

"I beg you will do me the favor to inquire if Capt. James L. Donaldson, 1st Artillery, Mexican war, still lives. During our late unpleasantness he rose to a generalship in the Federal army. He was for a time Quartermaster at Saltillo during the Mexican war while I was interpreter to that department. It was Lieut. Donaldson who, with a handful of teamsters, stragglers and such other material as he was able to pick up and drum into some sort of order, your humble servant augmenting the rabble by one, drove back and held in check Gen. Minon with his 5,000 cavalry threatening our rear while the battle of Buena Vista was in progress." &c &c

My old friend and correspondent intimates that it would be a pleasure to him to communicate with Gen Donaldson, and I doubt not that it will be a pleasure to you, General, to put him in the way of doing so, if in your power. I have no official literature at command capable of affording the information sought, and in fact do not know how to set about looking for it.

I have taken the liberty of addressing you in the belief that the appropriate reference is perhaps accessible at your post. Should you be in position to oblige me with it, it will no doubt become the source of a gratification to my esteemed correspondent.

With great respect, I am, General,
Obedtly Your servant

My dear General:

Mr. J. P. Lyon
of Seattle who called on you with me some days since,
is on his way to Washington
to see Genl. Thor. L. Casey in a matter he will explain to you. Mr. Lyon has never met Genl. Casey and I will deem it a favor if you will give him a note of introduction to the General

Yours Truly

New York, Dec 4th 1891.

My dear Gen.:

Your kind response to my note, in regard to the "Throckmorton" trial, was duly received, and please accept my thanks for your courtesy. -

I see by the papers of today, that the Court has been ordered for the 9th inst. -

If there is any way, by which Mr. Lillis can be retained as Stenographer, I shall be very much gratified, for he has been several times engaged on Gov. work, & is peculiarly qualified for his duties.

Very respectfully yours

Wm. B. Lillis

My dear Sir:

From your response
to my note in regard to the "Illustration" there was little interest, and I have only my thanks for your courtesy. - I see by the paper of today, that the Court has now ordered for the first time -

If there is any way of making
Mr. Collier's can be returned as a thing
I shall be very much obliged for it and the amount time required for the same, to be sent to me for the same.
