My dear General,

I communicate your letter to Capt. Niger and he has asked me to convey to you his sincere thanks for it. He sent me also a statement of his military services which I enclose.

Very truly yours,

O. O. Harvard.
Dear Sir,

I desire to thank you for the reply to my note of inquiry re. the "Bethesda Message," and am glad that Providence did not permit the expected desecration to take place. I am also glad that you were not aware that the agreement was planned to take place on Sunday. I was not aware of it till Saturday, hence my hasty note to you, hoping it would reach you by the evening mail.

Though unknown to you, yet your reputation as an advocate of Evangelical Christianity, and your conspicuous position in the Army... and in society, induced me to address you feeling convinced that you are not a party to such an arrangement.

My remarks about the Recorder were based on observation of its course and its contents. It is unfortunately taken daily by a relative with whom I reside, and from seeing it thus, I have become convinced that it is a tone of great declamation, and a stimulus to the gambling spirit now too prevalent. It makes a loud noise continually to induce people to buy its Sunday issue, which can only result in their moral injury and the ruin of our American institutions.

If Sabbath observance continued, 'God's Communication Correct your Manumitt."

I am, yours respectfully,

Theodore Rouse.

The article in the Boston Commonwealth was evoked by an attack upon me by Oliver Johnson (Mr. Garrison's Boswell), for having used the term Pioneer of Anti-Slavery, which he thought belonged to Mr. Garrison, and, as I mentioned, he was ignorant of the facts, and of Mr. Garrison's published history of my Father written to me— I have the Philo copy of the "Work of Slavery," of 1816. My Father had second edition of it published in an enlarged form after 1830 (with illustrations), called the "Picture of Slavery," this I have also. At the request of Rev. N. Wheeler, I wrote a Biographical Sketch for the Methodist Quarterly Review, 1880, giving facts unknown to many of the Cardinal advocates of Anti-Slavery in a laborious subsequent to 1840. By that time the occasion of the stormy scenes in the Virginia General Assembly of 1816—7—18—19 on the Slavery question; was indicted by the Lexington Press of Virginia, and after a contest of several years in the Senate, was compelled to come North. Mr. Garrison met him about 1828 with what result his letters show. Yours Respectfully, Thaddeus Brown.

Major-General U.S.A.

You will no doubt be surprised when you receive this note. I would like to ask you to send me a short note with your signature attached. I don't think I am a crank, for we are thinking of getting up a sort of a historical spirit and we would like to have the signature of those Generals now living who officiated in the late civil war. We wish all boys under fifteen to please anoswee, this note please answered and oblige yours respectfully J. Reid

Dear Sir:

If it is allowed,

I should like to ask permission to occasionally sketch the marine from the shores of Governor Island during the summer, the difficulty attending such work around the city waterfront making it very unsatisfactory.

I would refer you to any of the New York artists, or shall be glad to furnish you other...
Awaiting your favourable consideration.

I remain

Dear Sir:

Will you please advise me how I should go to work to get a pass to witness the examination at West Point military school the coming June.

I was brought up directly in the rear of the point; am now visiting here and would like to take a run myself during the examination to visit the old place. If it is in your power to favor me with ticket for myself, with daughter, it would be one of the greatest favors you could render me. I am Respectfully,

S. H. Schuyler

First of all things, I am going to tell you the story of the Great Fire.

Mr. Smith, the printer, was much occupied.

My dear Sir: I am very pleased to see your arrival announced in the papers. I trust you will see at the same time your hopes and doings are very much occupied.

Yours truly.
I arrived from the West and am visiting my mother for a few weeks before returning to Chicago.

And would enjoy telling you very much if only for a few moments—

I would also—my mother—
