The evening of August

for you at the Astbury Park

did all of us so much good last year that the requests keep coming in that you be urged to come

can have the grand Army present. Nobody has

The Hon. ROBE.

Superintendent of U. S.

Washington, D. C., September,

My Dear Mr. Young:

I was delighted to receive your letter stating that the National Service at Asbury Park had not only been a success in securing eminent speakers but in collecting funds for the purpose of sending sick and crippled children into the Country air. In my opinion, the audiences you have gathered together at this service cannot be equaled as representative, intelligent American gatherings for purposes Religious, Intellectual and Charitable. Both the Secretary of the Treasury and the Secretary of State said to me after their addresses at Asbury Park that they rarely, if ever, had the pleasure of meeting such a splendid and representative audience as was congregated at the Auditorium upon the occasions when they spoke.

So far as I am concerned, no address that I have delivered of late years was so widely published or so generally commented on as the one which I gave at Asbury Park. This would indicate that the services so recently begun have become not only popular, but national. You are really to be congratulated on the success of this undertaking, and I predict still more satisfactory results next year.

Yours truly,

Robert P. Porter.

Dear General Howard:

Meeting your daughter and her beautiful children at Vancouver made me think of writing you at this time. Of course it will be no news to you that they are well.

I wish to ask you if it would be possible for you to go to my Rest Island mission to attend our annual convention July 16 - 23, and speak to the people there. I am sure the work there would interest you and the crowd that gathers there at these conventions is worthy any speaker.

You may have heard of it but I send you a paper by this post which will tell you more of it. We shall have many delinguished people there and should be so happy if you might be one of the number.

My dear Sir:

As one of the newspaper representatives who heard your remarks at Gettysburg relative to what Gen. Grant would have done had he been in command, I regret exceedingly that any newspaper should have published what you apparently intended as an observation to brother soldiers and what you specifically requested should not be published as coming from you. I remember distinctly that when the question was first put to you, you looked straight ahead & made no reply. It was only after Gen. Alexander had spoken and the question was put to you the second time that you expressed your opinion, prefacing it with the remark that you trusted the newspaper men present would not put it in print, or words to that effect. To me it had the same effect as a confidential communication to be treated accordingly. No good could possibly follow its publication with your name attached, no matter how strong may be the corroborative judgment of the best military experts of the country, North & South.

As a newspaper man, general, I sincerely regret your confidence should have been imposed upon, for it is by just such acts of thoughtlessness, with a view of making a momentary sensation that the entire journalistic profession is brought into disrepute.

Very sincerely yours,

I can take a fly to N.Y. almost any time. Will advise if I have to go west for a time.

My dear General: I find your highly esteemed letter of May 5, just, on my return from northern New York. I was naturally drawn to the incident of Reynolds' fall and your assumption of command at Seminary Ridge & Gettysburg village on the 1st of July & that opportunity you so daringly sought to break the rebel army in twain that their wings might be crushed at night in detail. It was a magnificent opportunity which "Lee" saw after you had compelled him to do so, calling for his 50,000 that crushed your small force, which you withdrew so skillfully to Cemetery Hill. The more I study that Battle Field, the more I believe that, even if you had have been supported with the 10,000 from Harpers Ferry, you would have been able to make the magnificent dash, contemplated, that would have destroyed the largest portion of Lee's army. What a pity that Genl. Halleck com-

the army from Washington, he was not less patriotic than others, but like Mc' Lellan, he was afflicted with an over cautious judgement, "Napoleon" won all his brilliant victories by seizing upon advantageous circumstances during the heat of battle, so did the third "Napoleon" at Solferino.

It was such a pity you were not properly supported from the direction of Harpers Ferry by a fleet on the rear of the rebel right wing, preventing that delay & concentration of 50,000 against you. Of course it is not for me to criticise with my incompetency, I only give the judgement of the common observer. Certainly, Halleck knew his dispositions & of the location and approaches that the rebel army must use.

To the reader of today, the fights at "Seminary Ridge" & "Cemetery Hill" were the brilliant episodes of the battle, & saved the rest of the army.

Moxie Nerve Food Co.

Office and Manufactory, 21 Branch St., Lowell, Mass.

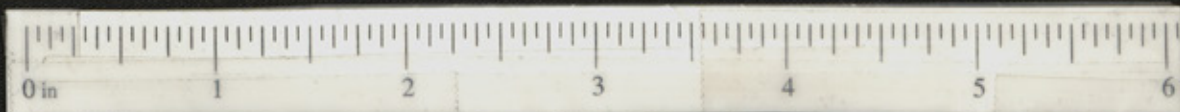

Lowell, Mass., 18

It is around these circumstances and that magnificent defence against the power of the rebel army, wherein 20,000 men and your own good judgement saved the reputation & fields & cities of the north at Gettysburg, In saying this, I only speak what other and better men have given as their judgement.

It is not alone at Gettysburg that our silent & modest men from Maine shine brightly, but in contests not less sanguinary if less important, and it is time they were given their proper place in history.

I desire to weave a plot that shall exhibit this to the nation, now incompetency at Washington has been proved to be a fact.

I have never seen Mrs. Holloways sketch of your life. I shall be highly pleased to learn of all advantageous circumstances from your own lips, to give me assistance. Advise me of a time when you can give me a little time, I, too am very busy, Sincerely, A. Thompson

Dear Sir;

We have forwarded you copies of the "Statement of Facts and Appeal" for your prayerful and christian consideration in righting the wrongs to which we have been subjected and now complain.

From the beginning of this affair until the filing of our last appeal to the Trustees we have repeatedly and untiringly prayed and sought in and through the proper channels for a hearing and redress of this most flagrant of wrongs, without avail, and now as you already know have submitted the case to the highest—the only legal and proper body—the Trustees, asking only for a hearing feeling assured that this, in all events will be synonymous to an exoneration.

Dear Sir:

I beg to be permitted to introduce myself to your notice for a purpose which I am sure will receive your sympathy and ready acquiescence, even to the extent that your lectures and talks throughout this country for the elevation of the moral and intellectual attributes of humanity have found an echoing chord in my soul for your success in the most meritorious work one can engage in. Like yourself I am a Christian, and try to be a consistent one, and was once a soldier in the Confederate Army, during the dark days of our Republic, and now I am trying to throw a ray of sunlight across those scenes of war and strife, which at reunions of the survivors of either armies, is depicted with too startling effect. It is my purpose, and have carried into effect on one occasion at a Grand Army union, to show to the present generation that if the God of Battles were with either side during the conflict, the God of Love, of Truth and of Humanity was always steadfastly and irrevocably the friend and loving companion of all. I have compiled a few instances of that spirit which came under my own personal observation during the war among my comrades, as well as reminiscences related by those who were then associated with me, forming same into a lecture, or rather a short talk while the guest of some local G. A. R. post. But it is apparent to me that my talk always lacks conclusion since the subjects are only from the Confederate side, and to remedy that defect can I not take the liberty of requesting any data which you may possess in this direction, or information where it can be gathered of acts of moral and religious heroism in the ranks of the Federal Armies? then, I am sure that "Christ in the Camp", will be adequately and impartially illustrated, if my powers of description can meet the demands of so worthy a subject.

I trust, Sir, this communication may find you in a position where you can conveniently grant this request, as any matter you may furnish will be fully appreciated.

I remain, Sir,

Yours very truly,

J. A. Helin
