Major General O. O. Howard,

Governor's Island,

N. Y.,

My Dear Brother:--

Have you ever thought about the memorandum relating to Capt. Duncan? Capt. Sladen writes me that he left all his own memoranda in regard to the Savannah campaign with you, and he thinks you could turn quickly to them.

We expect to be soon at Governors Island, and could look at whatever you have and make selections at that time, but I thought I would write you beforehand, for fear it might take some little search to find just what I want. His name was William Duncan. I should like much to get his P.O. address which Capt. Sladen thinks is somewhere in Dakota, It used to be in Minnesota.

I have engaged our sleeper to leave here next Tuesday afternoon at 3:10, to go by the way of the Michigan Central to Buffalo and ~~then~~ ^{then} on by the Central to the Grand Central station, where we would be due the next night at 8:50. Perhaps Burt (if he is not compelled to be studying) would like to meet us at that hour, but of course there is no great necessity for it, as we would know how to find our way by means of the elevated road to the Government Barge office and thence to the Island. I suppose there are many chances that the train may be late as it was when the boys went on. We are all well, and very busy getting ready for the trip.

I would like to stop over a train in Buffalo, and may conclude to depend on someone meeting Kittie and the baby and so come on later myself, or possibly I could leave on some earlier train from Chicago and then join her in Buffalo. At any rate, I think you may expect some of us on Wednesday night.

We have not yet heard of the arrival of Lizzie and Harry, but trust they got through safe and sound.

Affectionately yours,

affectionately yours,
C. H. Horner

Later Harry is very welcome at the

My dear Sir:

Some time ago I called on you in regard to Private (now a prisoner) Fred Wattenase of 'First Artillery' and you had the kindness to promise me not to send him to Kansas.

The poor boy has no other relatives in this country but myself and my husband to take care of him and as he has been sick again and was frightened by the news that some prisoners are to be sent to Kansas next week he informed me, to beg you again to keep him here.

I am not feeling well and my husband is in the same condition and has to take care of his business, therefore it will be impossible for me to call on you personally to recommend the boy to your mercy, I therefore take these means to ask the favor of you to keep him here and give us an opportunity to make a

Thanking you all favors conferred upon me on my last call, I also thank you in advance for complying with this request.

General O. O. Howard,
Governor's Island, N. Y.

My Dear General:

The circular which I enclose will explain itself. I am about to go on the platform under the management of this bureau, and will be somewhat of a curiosity to the people from the fact that no scout has ever gone before the public except to pose as a hero of bloody frays and a relentless slaughterer of Indians. I have always despised this sort of notoriety, and have ever endeavored to appear as a gentleman worthy the confidence and esteem of the better class of people. I have refused very profitable offers to lend my aid and encouragement to wild west shows and vile border dramas, and have always believed the day would come when I would gain honest recognition as a true westerner, and not a desperate terror who delights in scenes of blood and warfare. I will cater to the better, most intelligent class of people under the auspices of Y. M. C. A., temperance and church societies, and hope to be able in time to destroy the ideas of the people of the frontier which the wild west showmen have created.

I have a number of letters of commendation of my work from men and women high in public prominence, notably ex-President Harrison, Gen. Lew Wallace, Mrs. Logan, and others, and I very much desire to secure a line of encouragement from your hand. You know something of my entertaining powers, my strict temperance principles, my work in the cause of temperance, my personality, etc., and if you feel that you can give me a testimonial to use with many others in my circulars I will be very grateful. You are so well known and are held in such high esteem by the religious and intelligent class of people with whom I will be brought in contact, that a few lines from you would be a great aid to me. Please favor me with an early reply. Address me in care of the Chicago Press Club, 133 Clark Street.

Yours very respectfully,

...A Casket of Gems from Borderland...

A Night with the Poet Scout...

Captain Jack Crawford

Late Chief of Scouts U. S. A.

We have just secured a new and novel attraction in the person of Captain Jack Crawford, "The Poet Scout," late Chief of Scouts with the United States troops, operating against the hostile Indians on our western frontier. In contradistinction to the numerous self-styled scouts who seek for transitory fame by boasts of their deeds and by posing as dashing heroes in Wild West exhibitions and in the unnatural and debasing border dramas which draw extravagant pictures of border life, Captain Crawford is a refined, modest gentleman, a poet by nature, and a genius whose remarkable versatility has elicited the most favorable comment wherever he has appeared. During four years of service just closed as the trusted Special Agent of the Department of Justice, a position to which he was called when a cessation of Indian hostilities rendered the services of scouts no longer necessary, his duties have led him to the many military posts and Indian agencies of the land, and on his travels he has given occasional entertainments for such worthy charities as came to his notice. His efforts have been applauded in an unusually enthusiastic manner, and the popular verdict wherever he has appeared has been that a more magnetic, more thrillingly interesting entertainer never faced an audience from the platform.

Captain Crawford appears first in dress suit and tells stories, recites his own quaint poems and distinctively characteristic pen productions, then changes to the buckskin costume of the scout and takes his auditors as willing, delighted captives with him to the wild and romantic border land. There he lays before their eyes the most attractive pictures of western experiences that it is possible for the tongue to depict, and draws the colors so quickly and so luridly that his auditors seem to see through his eyes as he flies from point to point in his wanderings.

His earnest, convincing talks to the boys on the pernicious results of dime novel reading should alone cause tens of thousands of parents to bring their children to listen to and profit by his eloquent condemnation of that class of literature. His talks on temperance have won for him the love and esteem of the greatest temperance advocates of the land, and his quaint, unique "cowboy sermons" have been listened to and commended as instruments of great good by many of the most eminent divines of the East and West. His modest yet thrilling recitals of personal experiences in Indian warfare hold his audiences in the deepest interest from beginning to close.

His personal magnetism is so marked that ere he has uttered a score of sentences he has enlisted the deepest interest, and for two hours he sways his audiences at will from laughter to tears and from tears to laughter by his keen wit, droll humor and heart-touching pathos. He stands alone in his own distinctively characteristic field of entertainment, and always leaves behind him a feeling of deep gratification that he has been seen and heard, and an earnest desire to see and hear him again.

PARSONAGE

—OF THE—

First M. E. Church.

GRAFTON T. REYNOLDS,

PASTOR.

Mansfield Valley, Pa., Nov. 7, 1893.

Major-Gen. O. O. Howard, U. S. A.,
Commanding Dept of Atlantic.

Dear Sir,

It is customary in this section for the different parts of the G. A. R. to have a sermon preached to them on the Sabbath evening, preceding May 30th, "Memorial Day". It is desired instead of having a sermon preached by one of the local pastors, to have you come and deliver an address to the part of this place, and their friends, on Sabbath evening, May 27th. Just such a talk as you gave to the veterans in Chicago in connection with Mr. Moody's meetings, a few weeks ago.

Mansfield is a suburb of Pittsburgh, about a half hour's ride by rail. My church with seat about 1,000 is open for the service, and it will be crowded if you consent to come.

The ranks of the veterans are rapidly growing smaller, and many, I am afraid, die without a preparation for the hereafter. A talk from me in your position, and from my like to them to whom you speak, had brand dealt on the battle field, would have more force,

PARSONAGE

I am confident, than a dozen ordinary
sermons,

GRAFTON T. REYNOLDS
PASTOR

I hope you will see your way clear to accept this invitation. I am writing thus far ahead, trusting it will make it easier to arrange your plans to come,

434

Of course all expenses you incur
will be met by the host of this place,

Yours truly
