Dear Gen. Howard:

Some weeks ago
I received a letter from

She also asked me to write you a note pressure to bear which I could summon to very hard to bring much provision to bear at this distance. If I could

I would do my best,

My dear General Howard:

Understanding that Fort Ethan Allen will be occupied by troops in the near future, I have made application to the War Department, through military channels, that the claims of my regiment, the First Cavalry, for an eastern station, be considered when it is decided to send troops there.

May I be permitted also to ask you, in case the question is left in your hands as to what troops you would like to have, that you give consideration to the First Cavalry in making your choice? The regiment has had a long tour of frontier duty, and is now for the second time serving in Arizona. You are personally acquainted with most of the captains and older lieutenants, as they served under your command in your difficult indian wars of the North West, so that the regiment is no ^a stranger to you.

With expressions of high esteem, and of regret that your active service in the army is nearing its end, I am,

Very sincerely yours,

During the general state of unrest throughout the Country at the present time, and the great questions, all intimately associated with the great principles on which our government rests, principles which are new men, within a very brief period to be again as in 1861. About the Colored Girl.

During the great war of Gettysburg when they were fighting very severely a piece of shell or shot went through Colonel Boughton's hair, and cut nearly all his scalp. In some way it touched his nerves so that he had very severe head-aches.

He was taken to Washington to stay until he would recover of his wound. While he was staying in Washington, he and his wife hired a little colored girl for to do a little work for them.

This little girl was a little christian; but Colonel Boughton and his wife were not christians.

The little girl did not know how to read but Colonel Boughton did; so he thought he would try to learn her how to read. When the little girl would tell him about her religion he would say "Nonsense! Nonsense!"

One day when Colonel Boughton said this to the little girl, she said "I don't know what you white people believe but I know what I believe. After that Colonel Boughton sent for one of the soldiers in General Howard's regiment, and after a while he and his wife became followers of the Lord Jesus. A little while after Colonel Boughton sent for General Howard, and told him the story about the little colored girl.

About the German Boy.

During the beginning of the war of Gettysburg one of the Colonels had a little German boy in his regiment. The little boy had a pony given to him by the Colonel. In the night this little boy rode from the Colonel's to General Howard's tent with messages. One night when little Bony, for such the soldiers called him, was outside of General Howard's tent, General Howard heard Bony say some very bad words. He told a tall Englishman to go out and get Bony and bring him in.

After that General Howard told the Englishman to get a basin of water and have it very soapy. Then he told the

Englishman to wash Bony's

Englishman to wash Bony's mouth when he did that General Howard said, "Wash it again?" so he washed it again and he said "Wash it again!" so he washed it again.

Then he said to Bony, now you may go and don't you let me hear any more such words.

After a while the army was fighting in the Cemetery called the Cemetery hill. Little Bony was behind a large rock named Key Position holding a lot of horses by the reins with his left hand. A few pieces of shell fell on his hand and cut off ^{it}.

He was carried to the nearest hospital. A friend of General Howard named Mrs Samson went to see Bony and said,

Poor boy! and he said I'm not a poor boy! I'm not a poor boy! General Howard got his right hand cut off, and I got my left hand cut off that's all about it.

In the great war there were some men whom we called guerillars.

They lived in the woods.

General Howard said that he used to send his men after them on horse back. If you asked them where they were going they would point to a bag on the horse's back, which meant that they were going to the mill. If they found a man alone they would kill him.

One of our men was killed by them.

He and his family were very poor, and the mother went to the great city of St. Louis to go to work. But she could hardly get money enough to buy bread for her children. One day Willie the oldest, a boy about ten years old said to his mother, mother, I can do something, and the mother said what can you do and he said, I can go and be enlisted in the army. So his mother said to him you can go and see if they will enlist you. So he went to the camp of the army, and met a sargan and said to him I want to be enlisted, and the sargent said what can you do and he said I can drum, and the sargent said to a fifer who stood near him get me a drum and he got a drum and gave it to Willie, and Willie played several tones and the fifer fired. The sargent went and I got him enlisted. One day they had to go into battle, and Willie went with them but the sargent was always by Willie, when night came the sargent could find Willie so he waited till morning and began to look for Willie. Pretty soon he heard Willie's drum he soon found him, and found that his two legs were cut off by a shell, he took him to a hospital where he died in a few hours.

The original act of Congress would seem to confer powers sufficiently broad, yet subsequently the work of the B. was enlarged & embraced "the supervision & care of all loyal refugees & freedmen, as far as the same shall be necessary & enable them as speedily as practicable to become self-sustaining citizens of the U.S. & to aid them in making the freedom conferred by proclamation of the Comd-in-Chief, by emancipation under the laws of the States, & by constitutional amendments available & beneficial to the public'.

In fact until the subsequent acts of Reconstruction had been passed & put into active operation this Bureau had in its hands, partly through the entire machinery of government & responsibility as far as the classes named in the act were concerned.

Dear Sir

Will you kindly give me a little information about the object of the Freedman's Bureau?

I do not wish to trouble you to go into details, but, as an old soldier of this town told me he thought I could get the best information from you, I have written to you about it.

Very Respectfully,

Extract from Universal Cyclopaedia page 311 - Article "Freedmen's Bureau" by Gen O. Howard

"Introductory. - Preliminary to the establishment of what shall be done with the negro? of the bureau officially known as the B of R for Aban Lands" new problems were presented upon the attention of the American people by events flowing directly from the great war of 1861-65.
Between 1 & 5,000,000 of people were suddenly set free from chattel slavery & a large class also of the poor white population of the Southern States were disturbed & sought refuge & supplies for their necessities in the cities & villages. The pauper class had become so much increased from the date slaves & the white in 1865 - that at one time the army alone was feeding upwards of 14,000 of such dependants.
Solidly in the south at the close of the war, was completely broken up

The questions at that time discussed in Congress were such as these;
(1) What shall be done with the south?
(2) What shall be done with the negro?

(3) What shall be done in the work of reconstruction as a steppingstone to political existence, & political equality?
After any thing discussion the object was effected by the passage of what is popularly known as the "Freedmen's B Act"; establishing a B - in the war Sept; the act was ~~approved~~ approved Mar 3/65 The B - were committed the supervision & management of abandoned lands & the control of all subjects relating to refugees & freedmen from any district of country within the territory embraced in the operations of the army, under order & reg. prescribed by the Genl of the Bureau, & approved by the President.
