Dear Sir Bond

In the liberty I have taken in writing to you, but being an old soldier and also ill-timed out of shape from a rheumatism of my condition is such as present as to preclude the possibility of earning a livelihood or even to obtain those little necessaries which would tend to make life less miserable, so I enclose a charm made from horse hair woven by myself, hoping you will procure the power for which I am very thankful indeed.

Dear Sir, trusting in your kind consideration

My dear General:—

I wired the Boston gentlemen yesterday, after Dr. Graves returned from the Island, asking them to be here Thursday morning at nine o'clock. Having heard nothing further from them, fully expect they will be here, and in that case we will take the nine-thirty boat.

Thanking you in advance for trespassing upon your valuable time,

I am, sincerely yours,

Dear General,

"And God said, Let there be Light." is usually continued as a divine Word creating something to see by. Against this wholly inadequate idea, my last Book is a protest argument. Though it is a treatise on a variety of other subjects, that is, really, its end is a comprehensive analysis of its existence - as seen in the last chapter. What the Book proves to make plain is a very important truth: it is with reference to the Element Light
Which pervades all nature.
That our Lord is said to be
The Light of the world.

Dear General, I thought this brief note from me as

My dear Sir:-

In relation to the Security Mutual Reserve Association to which your referred a few evenings ago, I would state that I have looked into this concern with considerable care. I determined long since that I would not insure my life again in any institution of a co-operative nature. The Security Mutual is organized under the co-operative laws but professes to be free from the evils of the co-operative system. By insuring in this Association you become one of its members and consequently personally entitled to share in its benefits or liable for its losses. A thorough acquaintance with this Association would doubtless give you a feeling of unrest as to the final outcome of the experiment.

A Fifteen Payment Life Policy in the Prudential or in any other old line company guarantees you Paid-Up Insurance for the face of your policy at the end of the period. You have protection and satisfaction at the same time. It is true you pay for it but you cannot get such a bond for less money. A policy in the Prudential
In relation to the Security Mutual Reserve Association.

To whom it may concern,

I have been directed by our executive committee to write to you to inform you of the following.

I have recently been informed by the Security Mutual Company of the necessity for issuing a new policy form for the mutual reserve association. This new form will come into effect on the 1st of January next year.

The new policy form will be more advantageous to the policyholders and will provide better protection against loss.

Yours truly, is a gilt edged security document often convenient as collateral always worth its face without discount at maturity. You pay more money and you get more value. The chances are largely against the ultimate success of the Security Mutual but the chances are all in favor of the permanency of the Prudential. When Heaven and earth pass away doubtless the Prudential will go too.

I enclose figures on a Fifteen Payment Life Policy at age thirty one in our Company. Take out a policy to live by for there is but little doubt that you will live longer than nine tenths of the experimental Life Insurance Associations of this country.

Gentleman,

It is possible that your letter has some influence with the Apgar, in favor of my nomination for an appointment to the Indian Service. I have just learned that a White man has been appointed to the position.

I know him well. He is a strong man and has served in the Army of the South. I know him to be a strong advocate for White Christian influence. I have seen him in action several times.

Under any circumstances, I am glad to see him in the service. He is a capable and efficient officer.

May God bless him and all who serve in the service of the nation.

Yours truly,

Of the War Debt - Mr. Vincent gave me all the help, away of sorts. He told me to put in a statement and affidavit that were to purchase the Commodity in that region of our country. It is an inconvenience, more than because he is a superior man in a way. He is feared because he has been talked about and abused. Can anything be done? Will you also please tell me what can be done of that now which I gave you to bring in for me. While I remain to kind for any third C. M. I would like to have it. As it was very warm. They would give to me. I gave a horse in return after the Indian action of a known exchange of gift.

General,

It is possible that you still have some influence with this agglomeration of heedless, conscienceless impulses, we call our Government. It has but recently come to my knowledge that Es-kim-au-zin, the Apache Chief is confined in a military prison in the South. I know him well. You know something of him. I know him to be a strange admixture of a stoic, Christian Indian. I have never an honest man under any kind of skin. While it is possible that martyrdom may be desirable for his entry into the eternal ages, I am quite sure it is "Woe unto them by whom his martyrdom comes".

I have been to the Secretary of the Interior, then to the Indian Department, and there learned that the whole matter was in the hands of the War Department. General Vincent gave me all the hopeless array of facts - paper facts, built out of statements and affidavits that are so purchaseable a commodity in that region of our country.

He is an inconvenience down there because he is a super-

You left this book in the little dressing room, and although you may be in on Monday, I thought you might miss it before then and not think of it—being here I feel concerned about it so hurry my boy off with it as soon as discovered.
