Dear Gen Howard:

When your letter arrived yesterday assuring us of the Girl's Dormitory there were many happy hearts in the building. The girls all went to work with new vigor (in fact the whole school)

Henry of the students apt preciate what is being done for them. I wish those interested in the school could step into our students prayer-meeting some Tuesday evening and hear the earnest prayers that go up for them.

I would certainly rejoice them.

I hope you are feeling much better than when we saw you last. We are looking forward to having you with us next week,

Yours very sincerely

My dear General:

Replying to yours of the 11th I am glad to be able to give you the following general information about the Indians I took care of in Arizona.

They were Apache-Yuma and Apache-Mojave Indians numbering about 650 souls. They inhabited the country lying east of the Colorado River Agency between the latitude of Prescott on the north and the Hassayampa River on the south. They were not really Apaches but were offshoots from the Yuma and Mojave Indians who had not gone on reservations when the remainder of their people did but went to the mountains instead living as best they could on the country and from incursions into neighboring settlements and attacks upon wagon trains traversing the roads from the Colorado River to Prescott, Ariz. They assumed the name Apaches calling themselves Apache-Yumas and Apache-Mojaves. They kept up their distinct tribal organization although they were much intermarried and spoke the same language. "Jim-as-pi" was the Chief of the former and "O-che-cak-mi" of the latter. When I first went to Camp Date Creek Arizona in 1869, these Indians, being hostile, made the roads and the vicinity of the post unsafe for individual travelers or small unescorted wagon trains and the troops were constantly engaged scouting for and fighting with them. The following year (1870) a small party of them approached the post with a white flag and said they were hungry and tired of fighting and wanted to "come in." A few days later they came in to the post to the number of 650 - men, women & children and were camped about a mile from the post in and near the creek bottom of Date Creek. I was placed in charge of them and under orders from the Department Commander issued daily one pound of beef and one pound of flour to each Indian. As far as I was able I tried to encourage the Indians to work paying them, for such work, by additional issues of flour. Among other things the squaws supplied to military post with fuel gathering the wood in the canyons, sometimes miles away and packing it in on their backs. For each load so delivered one quart cup of flour was given. For clothing they had to depend upon the skins of deer which they killed and tanned and upon the cast-off uniforms of officers and soldiers. I never had a Cent of money for use of these Indians until you came to the Post in 1872 (I think) and gave me, upon my request, fifty dollars for purchase of garden seeds. You also authorized, by direction of the President an increase in the ration by adding some coffee, sugar, beans and soap. This helped me out materially. Under instruction of some of our soldiers and under my supervision the Indians began gardening - in a primitive style it is true, but sufficiently successful, even the first year, to encourage them to continue. I remember with what pride they presented me with some of the first melons raised by them. As to clothing that of the men consisted during the greater portion of the year of simply a black cloth of unbleached ^{muslin} ~~muslin~~.

In the winter months discarded soldier uniforms, blankets & formed their covering. The squaws wore a picturesque short skirt made of successive layers of bark of trees intertwined with red flannel. The skirt extended to the knee. They wore leggings of deer skin - often fancifully trimmed with bead work and also moccasins. The ~~up~~ body from the waist up was ordinarily nude, except for a deer skin apron from the front of the skirt at the waist to ~~be~~ just under the breast and held up by a string of beads or bones of birds strung in a cord around the neck. In cold weather a Navajo blanket was worn over the shoulder or a grey army blanket by the older squaws.
Ornaments of brass, silver and shells were worn in the shape of necklaces, finger and earrings. Married women wore a straight piece of sharpened bone piercing the flesh just under the lower lip. The hair of the women

2/ was combed out straight - not braided - and was "banged" across the forehead just above the eyes. The men tied their hair into a sort of queue with pieces of red flannel; frequently it was braided. In summer the men braided their hair close to the head and covered the entire hair with mud which hardened and presumably kept their heads cool.

To my mind these Indians were the finest specimens, physically, of their race. They were great runners being able to go on a dog trot all day. An Indian brought me a message from the Colorado River Agency - 100 miles distant by the nearest route - having completed the distance between sunrise of one day and noon of the next. The younger women were in many cases very comely, but aged rapidly after marriage. They were strictly virtuous.

This, I think, covers the ground of your inquiry. Mrs. Ebbett joins me in kindest regards to Mrs. Howard, Harry & Bessie Sincerely yours
Fred E. Ebbett

REASONS WHY

The Association Deserves Support.

First:—Because it is a Rutland institution, managed by Young Men for Young Men, a help and a credit to the city in every way and a hinderance in none.

Second:—Because the Y. M. C. A. offers you, your son and all of Rutland's sons, a strengthening place for spending time for improvement.

Third:—Because of the fact that it is the leisure time of young men that becomes the open way to looseness and dishonor. The Association, realizing this, prepares to occupy this time fully by a host of different attractions which tend to pleasure and profit.

Fourth:—Because it is a practical, non-sectarian, independent organization, whose membership is open to any self-respecting young man; an Association that gives in opportunities more than it takes in fees, but that does not bid for pauperism under the guise of charity.

Fifth:—Because of the fact that so many young men now in Rutland are away from their homes. When home influences are lacking or entirely missing, the Y. M. C. A. can and does supply them in part, and the help of the Gymnasium, Baths, Reading Room, Game Room, Summer Camp, Employment Department, Music Room and Religious Meetings and the good companions are all present.

Dear Sir:-

We have succeeded in getting a Quit Claim Deed from Alwilda K. White, covering Lot 34, Block 8 Howards Sub, and placed the same on record. In looking up the taxes on this lot, we find an outstanding sale for the year 1890, made to yourself. The certificate being #2114 covering this and other lots. You had better send on this certificate so we can turn it in to the county treasurer and have the sale cancelled. We expect to hear from Mr. Sutton in a few days. The other owners, we have been unable to locate, and we believe that they have left this section of the country.

I hope that you are planning to be at Boston in June at the Jubilee Convention and that you will attend the Banquet of the Spanish American War Christian Commission workers. The Committee in charge have asked me to invite you to preside at the gathering if you are to be present. Mr. Saukey is to sing "The Battle Hymn of the Republic"; Mr. John A. Levering has written that he expects to come and we should have a profitable gathering. Will you say that we may expect you? I will write you about the program later if you say yes.
