Dear Gen Howard:-

I duly received your kind letter of recent date, and have delayed a reply as I was very reluctant to give you a negative answer. I am very sorry, my dear friend, that I cannot contribute to the noble work which is so near to your heart and in which you know I entertain the deepest interest. It is, however, a matter of almost daily occurrence for me to receive an appeal from some worthy cause, and it is, of course, impossible to extend aid to all. Furthermore, I stand pledged to a number of institutions to which I contribute annually, and in view of the very heavy expense that I have been put to within the last three years by reason of the extensive improvements here, I find it necessary to keep my contributions almost wholly to those works to which I have agreed to support.

It was a great pleasure indeed to have you with us during the conference in June, and I hope to see you here many times in the future.

With best regards, in which all members of the family join, believe me,

Very sincerely yours,

Dear General Howard:

General Sickles has stated in a public interview that he is in doubt as to what he shall do as to the candidates he will support in the present campaign. In making this statement he quite severely criticized the make-up of the Democratic ticket, particularly the tail end of it. Can't you either get in communication with him or see him, doing it entirely of your own volition? I am sure the General is right at heart and that naturally his sympathies are with us.

Please look into this matter at once.

I am in this city for a few days en route to Philadelphia to see my Publishers who positively promise to have the book ready for delivery by the first of September.

I am writing you today, to ask a great, big service. Perhaps I should not ask, and if it seems beyond the bounds of propriety, then you will destroy my letter and forget it.

For the sake of my soldier-lover-husband who is the hero of my story, I wish the book to be appreciatively received by the great American public, and I am endeavoring to find ways to swell the circulation, which

Dear General Howard:--

Your beautiful letter of several weeks ago, accompanying your kind order for my little book, "Lee and Longstreet at High Tide," very deeply touched me, and I thank you again and again and yet again, with all my heart, and have placed your generous expressions of good-will with the most cherished of my possessions.

It is now my earnest wish to bring the attention of the G. A. R. encampment in Boston this month, to my story, of the greatest of the world's battles and Gener-

If it would be pleasing to you to sign some such paper as the enclosed and return at once to me, I would have great satisfaction in having a number printed and brought to the attention of the encampment, and it

My dear General Howard:

It is a matter of keen regret to me that I am unable to be present at the annual encampment of the Grand Army in Boston this summer. I have already written the Commander-in-Chief of the Grand Army, General Black, and the Chairman of the Invitation Committee, General Blackmar, expressing my regret. To you, with whom I have been thrown into associations of affectionate respect, and with whom I have consulted in reference to so many of the governmental problems affecting our Nation, I wish to send a special <sup>note</sup> ~~line~~; and I ask you to say to your comrades of the great days of '61 to '65 a word to tell them that I feel a sense of real and personal loss at my inability to be present <sup>to</sup> and see them pass in review and to wish them well. Your prompt and generous response to my recent request concerning my memorial volume to General Longstreet, has very deeply touched my heart, and no language can frame my grateful appreciation.

Such deeds cement the stronger brotherhood of the race.

And your kindness gathers strength and beauty from the circumstances of the hour;--you, the hero of the northern armies, to find time to touch my hands in friendliness and good-will when I mourn for him who was the heart and soul of the confederate struggle. I shall never forget it.

Dear General:--

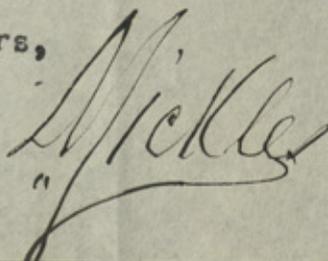

Yours of the 6th inst. reached me this morning. I shall try to be with you at Atlantic City, especially as I have heard that some fussy people intend to raise a question about the legality of your election as President, which will be a very absurd proceeding, as your term of office would expire at the moment when they are questioning your title. You have observed, no doubt, that we have a troublesome element in the Legion, that appears anxious to bring everything and everybody down to a low level. I am somewhat out of patience with that element. I am sorry the new badges will not be ready for our next meeting. I was told recently at the War Department that General Porter and Bailey & Co., of Philadelphia, were still busy in the matter, aiming to produce the best thing of its kind in existence.

I have just now received from Mrs. Gen. Longstreet a copy of your charming letter to her of the 5th inst., about her book.. She is most enthusiastic over it. She exclaims: "Dear General Howard,- bless his kind heart! I shall hold his great name and fame tenderly in my own heart." She says "This is but one of hundreds of generous deeds that the men of the North have done for me. Only this week a New York veteran of the G.A.R. sent me, voluntarily, from Buffalo, a list of four hundred veterans who wish copies of my book. Do you wonder that such kindness overwhelms me. I do not know how to make known my appreciation, or what I have done to deserve all this sympathetic interest. Of course, I know that it is for General Longstreet."

Possibly you do not know that I have written an introduction to Mrs. Longstreet's book. It is perhaps an odd thing to do,- for a soldier to write an introduction to the biography of his adversary, but I regarded Longstreet with great esteem for his admirable conduct after the war, and, of course, we all had high respect for him as a soldier. When the book comes out I shall be glad to know what you think of my introduction.

Thank you for again reminding me of our friend, Phillip Hiss. Your letter to me about him was mislaid. I am sending a remittance to him this morning.

Sincerely yours,

Maj. Gen. O. O. Howard, U.S.A.

My dear General Howard:

I am informed that General Carrington spoke the other day at the Commercial Travelers' meeting and made use of some intemperate language regarding our opponents. You know the General and as it is stated you were on the platform and heard some of the things he said, I should be glad if you would drop him a note, not mentioning my name, and tell him that it would be unfortunate if he said anything that would tend to create bitterness where we naturally can hope for support. Intemperate language is unfortunate at all times and never more so than in a campaign. We of the Republican Party can always afford to make our appeal on the issues and on a high plane.

Dear General Howard,

When a man reaches my time of life and is as busy as I, he is apt to take liberties with his friends. I mention this hoping you will accept the statement in extenuation of the employment of my stenographer in the acknowledgment of your letter of 20th inst., which reaches me this morning.

I trust that Time is using you kindly, and that you are in the enjoyment of robust health. At this season of the year I should hate to exchange localities with you. We are in the enjoyment of the most delightful Winter climate I know of anywhere.

I note your desire for an introduction to Mr. Rogers. I regret that I am unable to comply with this request, simply because we have an unwritten law among the prominent men of the Standard Oil Co., that we are not to bring to each others notice any applications for help to charitable or religious objects. For my own part, I know that without assistance from my associates, I get all the applications and a good many more than I can favorably respond to.

In closing let me reciprocate your wish for "a joyous Christmas and happy New Year."

With every good wish, believe me,

Very sincerely yours,

W. M. Flagler

LINCOLN MEMORIAL UNIVERSITY,
Burlington, Vermont.

Dear Sir:

I have your valued communication, asking me to contribute toward Lincoln Memorial University, but as I am already aiding various educational efforts in the South, and as the needs of our own community are so very large and are increasing continually, I cannot see my way to add to the interests which I already have in the South.

Very truly yours,

Geo. W. Hill
