THE LITTLE DEFENDERS.

Washington's Birthday was observed with peculiarly beautiful ceremonies, and a grand display of national grandeur.

The World's Children's Society.

We have just received a most interesting letter from one of our most active and enthusiastic defenders. He tells us that he has been making considerable progress in his work, and that he has been able to secure the services of several prominent artists and writers, who have offered to lend their support to the cause of the Society. He also writes that he has been able to secure the services of several prominent scientists and educators, who have offered to lend their support to the cause of the Society.

The Society is making good progress, and we are confident that it will be able to achieve its aims.

We would like to take this opportunity to thank all of our defenders for their support, and to encourage others to join us in our work.
