Wells being ordered to watch well right flank of line of march and march diagonally to the right in the direction of Medicine Lodge. Mr. Leach brings word to General Howard from Capt. Clarke (Vol.) that Ed. Peabody sends an aide to explain that he only wished the Volunteers to act as flankers to the Column and keep them not to go to Medicine Lodge, as over they got into trouble it would necessitate his helping them, but that acts as a diversion in favor of the enemy. At this word he was glad to have them accompany Capt. Cooper with him, but would not order them to do so; only begged them to advise.
from their present line of march — to which they replied that they had misunderstood their orders and did not wish to interfere with the General's plans; only their idea was to keep up communication with their supply companies, and should the raiders pass the batteries between two fires, they could be in the rear by this time and the batteries between two fires. — They also said in answer to the General's request that the accompanying fire for two days at least, that their horses were fine and could not keep with the command. So deciding the column was already now some four or three miles in advance. Therefore Captain Deover said he would return to Deer Lodge and Camp Clark. He did not say definitely where he would stop, but said a cavalry of the 7th and some men would follow him. March 20 miles. Arrived at the crossing level fire, hotel only on hills. From 10 miles.
