RELIGION AND EDUCATION MUST BE UNITED.

The Conference last week listened with great pleasure to Vice-Chancellor MacCracken, of the University of the City of New-York, representing the Presbyterian Synod of New-York, in regard to the American theory of education. On motion of Dr. James M. King, a committee was appointed to consider the subject. The committee consisted of Dr. King, Dr. G. H. Gregory, Dr. E. S. Osbon, Dr. Thomas Lamont and Professor G. R. Crooks. Yesterday the following report was presented and unanimously adopted without a word of debate or a speech made in its favor:

Very Cooperatively
Your committee to whom you referred the memorial of the Synod of the Presbyterian Church, asking for a committee from this conference to act in co-operation with a committee from the Synod for the purpose of arousing the people to maintain the American theory of religion and education, respectfully report. We announce the following principles:

1. That the idea and origin of our Government is to afford opportunity for the development and protection of man as a moral being.
2. That the separation of church and State cannot mean, under our form of government, the separation of Christian morality and the State.
3. Historically, and by the highest legal and judicial precedent, we are a Christian nation.
4. "It is well settled by decisions in the leading States of the Union that Christianity is a part of the common law of the State." "The American States adopted these principles from the common law of England."
5. Education consists in the symmetrical development of the whole man for the purpose of the creation. This purpose is admitted to be moral. Purely secular education is impossible in a land whose literature, history and laws are the product of a Christian civilization.
6. The State, under a constitutional form of Government, assuming to educate, we admit it must educate consistently with constitutional prohibitions and provisions. But an eminent jurist has said: "The continuous judicial and prevalent historical interpretation of any constitutional provision is its true meaning, as adopted by the nation."

Your committee to whom you referred the memorial of the Synod of the Presbyterian Church, asking for a committee from this conference to act in co-operation with a committee from the Synod for the purpose of arousing the people to maintain the American theory of religion and education, respectfully report. We announce the following principles:

1. That the idea and origin of our Government is to afford opportunity for the development and protection of man as a moral being.

2. That the separation of church and State cannot mean, under our form of government, the separation of Christian morality and the State.

3. Historically, and by the highest legal and judicial precedent, we are a Christian nation.

4. "It is well settled by decisions in the leading States of the Union that Christianity is a part of the common law of the State." "The American States adopted these principles from the common law of England."

5. Education consists in the symmetrical development of the whole man for the purpose of the creation. This purpose is admitted to be moral. Purely secular education is impossible in a land whose literature, history and laws are the product of a Christian civilization.

6. The State, under a constitutional form of Government, assuming to educate, we admit it must educate consistently with constitutional prohibitions and provisions. But an eminent jurist has said: "The continuous judicial and prevalent historical interpretation of any constitutional provision is its true meaning, as adopted by the nation."

7. No uniform system of education exists in this country, although the most of the States and Territories have a system of public schools open to all and supported by taxation. The common schools are the result of local necessities while they are instituted by the State, and usually the character of the instruction is left to the local authorities.

8. The common and higher school system pressed into absolute secular uniformity, cannot meet the moral needs of a mixed population. Christianity must solve the question of the education of the masses upon Christian, and not upon secular grounds. The perils of bad habits from association in the schools can only be overcome by the inculcation of Christian morals.

9. The State assuming the right to educate a citizenship made up of accumulated beings, and the schools under its control becoming Godless, and, therefore, necessarily immoral, Christian citizens must deny the right of the State to assume to give such an inadequate education.

10. The common school system, imperfect though it may be, must be preserved, and we are not prepared to accept the secular theory, nor the sectarian theory its control, while its existence can be perpetuated as a fit training school for a morally responsible citizenship.

11. We will resist all efforts to expunge the facts of our Christian history and the teachings of Christian morality from the text-books of schools supported by the State.

12. We repudiate, as un-American and pagan, and as a menace to the prosperity of our free institutions, the recent Supreme Court decision in the State of Wisconsin, a decision dictated and defended by the enemies of the common schools, that the reading of the Bible, without comment, is "sectarian instruction of the pupils, in view of the fact that the Bible contains numerous passages upon some of which the peculiar creed of almost every religious sect is based, and that such passages may reasonably be understood to inculcate the doctrines predicated upon them." The enemies of the common schools declare that "the exclusion of the Bible would not help the matter. This would only make the schools purely secular, which were worse than making them purely Protestant, for as it regards the State, society, morality, all the interests of this world, Protestantism we hold to be far better than no religion." In the present state of the controversy, we hold it to be the duty of Christian citizens of a commonwealth Christian in its history and in the character of its laws to deny that the Bible is a sectarian book, and claim for it a place wherever the State attempts to educate youth for the duties of citizenship.

We recommend that a committee of three, to act in harmony with these principles announced, be appointed to confer with the committee of the Presbyterian Synod.

that the election, to be held on Sunday next, will pass off quietly.

BUFFETED BY GALES IN THE BAY OF NAPLES.

Naples, Italy, March 22.—The American squadron has experienced a disagreeable week. Unusually fierce equinoctial squalls have swept the beautiful Bay of Naples, and heavy rain, accompanied by lightning, has prevailed almost unceasingly. At one time on Tuesday it looked extremely likely that the Atlanta, which is moored at the end of the breakwater, would have to slip cables and moorings and stand out to sea in order to avoid collision with the Italian bark Silenzio, which was moored between her and the Chicago. A terrific squall from the southeast caught her on the starboard quarter and wrenched one of her large steel bitts, to which her weather moorings were fastened, out of its socket. The moorings were speedily shifted to the mainmast, and the Admiral's permission was requested to get up steam. After an hour or so, however, the wind shifted to another quarter during a rain squall, and the ships were enabled to ride to their moorings with much more comfort.

The Yorktown experienced severe weather at Castellamare, and on Sunday narrowly escaped drifting on the mole and injuring her propellers.

On the weather clearing up for a short time yesterday morning the three ships exercised at general quarters, in accordance with the squadron routine, and afterward the important exercise "abandon ship" was gone through.

The squadron leaves to-morrow morning for Corfu, at which ports the naval brigades will doubtless be landed for field exercises. The health of the crews of the four ships is good.

ABYSSINIA TO FIGHT THE SLAVE TRADE.

Rome, April 7.—Emperor Menelek of Abyssinia has written a letter to Prime Minister Crispi, authorizing Italy to represent him at the Brussels Anti-Slavery Congress, and affirming the intention of his country to follow the example of civilized nations and to repress the slave trade. The letter asks that Italy allow the free passage through her territory of arms required by Abyssinia to fight the dervishes.

Mechacha has arrived at Massowah. He is accredited by Emperor Menelek as Ethiopian Resident, and will co-operate with the Italian commander in the administration of the Tigre Province. Emperor Menelek will withdraw from the Tigre Province, his enemies having surrendered. The province is unable to supply provisions for a large force of troops.

ILL-TREATMENT OF CHRISTIANS IN CRETE.

Candia, Crete, April 7.—Bodies of Turkish troops have pillaged Christian churches and insulted Christians in the province of Candia. At the request of the foreign Consuls, Chakir Pacha, the Governor, has ordered an inquiry to be made into the outrages. The mixed commissions will inquire as to the extent of the losses the Christians have suffered, and the Turks will be compelled to compensate them when the amount is ascertained.

ONE MILLION IN GIFTS TO A UNIVERSITY.

Montreal, April 7.—At the annual convention of McGill University, which takes place at the end of this month, it will be officially announced by the principal, Sir William Dawson, that gifts amounting to $1,000,000 have been made, Sir Donald Smith giving a quarter of a million for a woman's branch, and a handsome new building will be erected. William C. McDonald, a rich tobacco merchant, gives nearly $500,000 for a school of architecture and science.

RACING IN ENGLAND.

London, April 7.—At Manchester to-day the race for the Lancashire Handicap Steeplechase Plate was won by G. Masterman's six-year-old Ilex.

The Kempton Park Easter Handicap race was run at Kempton Park to-day and was won by J. Dover's five-year-old Brucea.

A MINISTRY OF EDUCATION AT LISBON.

Lisbon, April 7.—A decree has been issued creating a special Ministry of Education, with Senhor Arroyo at its head. Among the functions of the new Ministry will be the regulation of the right of public meeting, and the empowering of officials to prohibit entertainments at which institutions or persons may be attacked. The liberty of the press is guaranteed under certain regulations.

LE CARON TO BE TAKEN CARE OF.

Dublin, April 7.—"The Freeman's Journal" says that Major Le Caron, who became notorious because of the testimony given by him for "The Times" before the Parnell Commission, is now living in a suburb of London. He has

HISTORY OF WORLD'S FAIRS.

The first International Exhibition on record was held at Paris in 1844; no record of it is accessible, though it was a success.

In emulation of this undertaking, the London "World's Fair" was opened May 1st, 1851. Its chief promoter was Prince Albert, who was deeply interested in industrial progress. It was built in Crystal Palace, constructed wholly of iron and glass in Hyde Park, designed by Sir Joseph Paxton, which covered 19 acres, and cost $800,000. Queen Victoria subscribed $5,000 and opened it in person. There were 17,000 exhibitors, and nearly 5,000 prizes were awarded. Six million visitors attended the building, or 43,500 per day, the largest single attendance being 100,015. The main attraction was the display of jewels, including the famous Koh-i-noor diamond. The profits from the enterprise were $90,000. Among the American delegates was Horace Greeley.

The third World's Fair was held at New York, in a Crystal Palace, on Reservoir Square—Sixth Avenue and 42d Street—covering $\frac{3}{4}$ acres. President Pierce opened the Exhibition July 14, 1853, which lasted 120 days. There were 4,800 exhibitors, more than half from abroad. The principal display comprised American machinery and agricultural implements. The building cost \$540,000, and the Exhibition failed to pay expenses. Julien's orchestral concerts were a marked feature of the Exhibition.

The second Paris Exhibition building was erected on the Champs Elysées, and was opened May 15, 1855. It covered 27 acres, being double the size of the London Crystal Palace. It cost about five million dollars, and was attended by four and a-half million visitors. There were 20,800 exhibitors, representing 53 foreign countries. It was not a financial success.

The second London Exhibition took place in 1862, in a special building at South Kensington, covering 40 acres. It lasted 177 days, and was seen by six million visitors. There were 26,348 exhibitors, two-thirds being foreigners. The Exhibition, like that in Paris and the one in New York, was a financial failure. Owing to the war of the Rebellion, but few Americans were present.

The Paris Universal Exposition of 1867, in the Champ-de-Mars, covered 56 acres of main building, and 70 acres of cultivated ground of the whole display, costing $4,000,000. It lasted six months, and was visited by ten million persons. There were 50,226 exhibitors, and 12,944 prizes, of which American exhibitors received 120.

The Vienna International Exhibition opened May 1, 1873, also lasted six months, was in the shape of a gridiron, and covered 50 acres. The main building was 2,985 feet long, 82 feet wide, and 93½ feet high, with 32 transverse galleries, while the number of windows was 2,624. There were 643 exhibitors from the United States, who received 349 awards. This Exhibition cost $22,000,000, and there was a deficit of $9,000,000.

The Centennial Exhibition has been planned to cover 490 acres, or as much as the Paris and Vienna Expositions united; the grand pavilion will occupy 36 acres, and the Machinery and Agricultural halls 12 acres. Some five millions have been offered to pay the cost of the exhibition. So many foreign applications have been received for space to display their products, that the room allotted for this class of exhibitors has been found insufficient. There is every reason to expect that the undertaking will be a success.

PRINCIPAL EVENTS DURING THE AMERICAN CENTENARY.

Prominent among the engineering enterprises of the century are the Hoosac Tunnel, the work at Hallett's Point, and the artesian and oil wells of Pennsylvania. Iron has entered largely into modern structures; the greatest success so far is in iron bridges. The first iron bridge in New York is 69 feet long and 109 feet between the walls. It covers about three acres. The first iron bridge was of cast-iron, across the Severn, England, in 1777. The bridge lately built across the Mississippi at St. Louis, has three spans 497, 531 and 497 feet, respectively. The Niagara River bridge, 821 feet, was erected by Roebling, in 1851. The new Niagara bridge, erected in 1869, is 1264 feet span, and 190 feet above the water. We are now waiting for the Brooklyn bridge, 5,896 feet between termini, 2,600 piers and 80 feet wide.

The first railroad was from Milton to Quincy, Mass., in 1826. The cars were drawn by horses. The Baltimore & Ohio was the first passenger railway; 15 miles, built in 1830. The first locomotive was built at the West Point Foundry for a South Carolina railroad; the second, in De Witt Clinton, about 1830 ran between Albany and Schenectady, 16 miles. The Pacific Railroad was completed in 1869. The mileage of railroad in the United States in 1841, was 3,535; in 1872, 67,104.

In 1832 Morse began to devote his attention to telegraphy. In that year he invented the system of telegraphing now known as Morse's. A short line was set up in 1835; but it was not until 1843 that he obtained his first patent. The first telegraph was from Baltimore to Washington, in 1844, and was a success from the start. The latest and strongest innovation is the duplex telegraph by which messages are sent over the same wire at the same time in contrary directions.

The first iron works in America were near Jamestown, Va., in 1606. They were destroyed and the workmen massacred by the Indians in 1622. The next attempt was at Lynn, Mass., in 1652. In these works, in 1652, were coined the Pine Tree silver shillings, &c. Henry Cort patented the puddling furnace in 1784. To Bessemer belongs the honor of purifying the metal by chemical means. The amount of iron made in the U. S. in 1870 was 3,905,728 tons. Of gold, 26,452,626 dollars.

What would our forefathers have said to the India Rubber manufacture in 1776? Priestley suggested its usefulness in removing pencil marks from paper. It was dissolved in turpentine and used by Peal in 1791 as water-proofing composition. Goodyear patented his vulcanizing process, June 15, 1844, after persistent and almost discouraging efforts, which were at last crowned with success. The results of his genius, care and persistence are all around us.

A hundred years ago the shovel, sack and tackle were used for moving grain. To-day we have steam elevators 150 feet long and 80 feet wide.

In no department has progress been more thorough than in wood-working machinery. In 1733 Sir Samuel Bentham invented the sliding bevel guide. Bramah invented the transverse planer in 1802. Thomas Blanchard, of Boston, invented the lathe for turning irregular forms in 1812. The interchangeable machines at the present day are very easy to understand when explained, but they have required years of patient study to develop.

The first important American printing-press, the Columbian, was invented by George Clymer, of Philadelphia, about 1817. Nicholson obtained a patent for a cylinder press in 1790. The Hoe press was patented in 1847. The Walter press now used by the N. Y. Times, prints from a roll of paper three miles long and at the rate of 11,000 sheets per hour. The Hoe Perfection press delivers 15,000 perfect sheets per hour.

In 1807 Robert Fulton went from New York to Albany in the Clermont, a boat of 160 tons burden. The first steamboat on the Mississippi was in 1811—the Orleans, 100 tons burden. In 1819 the Savannah (300 tons) crossed the Atlantic. Ericson's Monitor was built in 1862. The tonnage of the U. S. Marine in 1870 was 201,606 tons, and in 1872 was 4,437,747 tons.

In 1775 plows were made of wood except the wrought-iron share. Peacock, in 1807, cast his plow in three pieces. Wood of Cayuga co., N. Y., in 1819 patented the best plow. Steam plows are now constructed on several principles; traction engine dragging plows; engines on sides of fields dragging plows back and forth, etc.

Illuminating gas was unknown in 1776. In 1803 Winsor lighted the Lyceum theater in London, and obtained a patent for lighting streets with gas. London streets were lighted in 1815, Baltimore in 1816, and Boston and New York in 1825. Clegg invented the wet meter in 1807, Malam the dry meter in 1820.

The piano-forte was really invented by Christofori, of Florence, in 1711, but it was near the end of the century before it had attained excellence enough to supersede the spinet and harpsichord. The improvements in this instrument are marvelous, and America is in the front rank of excellence.

Glass was known in ancient Nineveh. But it is only within three centuries that its use has become common. Blown-glass was introduced into England in 1570; plate-glass in 1673; building-glass in 1846, just in time for the Great Exhibition in 1851.

Probably no invention except the locomotive has to go so great a degree expedited the transactions of commerce as the platform balance invented by Fairbanks Bros. about 1830. From their factory in Vermont, 50,000 scales are sent out annually to all parts of the world.

Elias Howe, Jr., invented the sewing-machine in 1846. The first valuable sewing-machine was the Singer in 1850. There have been 2000 patents issued for sewing-machine attachments. Last year 600,000 machines were made and sold.

The old fashion match was a splint dipped in brimstone and kindled with a piece of tinder set on fire by a spark from flint and steel. Lucifer matches have superseded all other appliances, employing an immense capital.

McCormick's reaper was patented in 1834, and, with improvements in '45 and '47, received a medal at the London World's Fair in 1851.

In 1776 safes were made of sheet-iron with hoop-iron bands. Wilder's safe was patented in 1843.

1735 Type first made by Christopher Saur, Germantown, Pa.
